

CHAMP CLARK CALLS MR. TAFT'S HAMILTON SPEECH 'UNFAIR' ONE

Declares After Reading "Keynote" Address That President "Garbled" Facts and Showed Ingratitude

KNEW ALL ABOUT IT

Speaker of House Says That White House Was Told of Tariff Legislation and Tacitly Consented to It

QUINCY, Ill.—President Taft's speech at Hamilton, Mass., on Saturday has aroused Democrats and insurgents alike and replies to it are to come apparently from all quarters.

Champ Clark, speaker of the national House of Representatives, who is here, when he read the speech immediately declared that Mr. Taft's statements were unfair and garbled.

"The President's criticism of Mr. Underwood and myself, which is essentially a criticism of all Democrats in the House and Senate, because all Democrats stood together, is absolutely uncalled for and is as ungrateful a performance as I can remember; for, if it had not been for the action of the Democrats in the House in both the sixty-first and sixty-second Congress in lining up almost unanimously in favor of reciprocity with Canada, he would have been the most thoroughly discredited and humiliated President since the days of Andrew Jackson," said Mr. Clark.

"With all the influences and patronage of his great office, he could not muster a majority of House Republicans for reciprocity in either the sixty-first or sixty-second Congress. After he pulled him out of the hole in the sixty-first Congress he wrote a letter of thanks to Mr. McCall of Massachusetts and the Republicans, and not a word of thanks to the Democrats."

"When we repeated the performance of pulling him out of the hole in the sixty-second Congress, he did divide the thanks between Democrats and Republicans. That was after I and other Democrats had expressed our opinions with considerable force and bluntness about his letter of thanks to Mr. McCall."

"The President says that we did not play politics about reciprocity, but that we did play politics about the tariff. The only politics we played was to keep faith with the people, and to religiously redeem the promises we made in order to win the election in 1910, which is the best and noblest sort of politics. If any politics was played for reciprocity the President himself played it—personally, at that time."

"The President endeavors to convey the impression that Mr. Underwood and I advocated his tariff commission. We did no such thing. What Underwood and I did advocate and vote for was a board of tariff experts to be governed by and made responsive to the House in general and to the committee on ways and means in particular, because the House is charged by the constitution with the duty of originating revenue bills."

"We were never in favor of a tariff board or commission under the control of the President alone and responsive to him only. The Congressional Record will fully and clearly prove my contention herein stated."

"It will be noted that while the President's conscience would not permit him to sign a bill revising even one schedule—the wool schedule, the rates of which he declared to be too high and in need of reduction, without recommendation from his board of non-experts—he promptly signed the outrageous Payne-Aldrich-Smoot tariff bill without the counsel, advice or tuition of any tariff board whatsoever."

"That bill was so bad that in a House with a Republican majority we lacked only five votes of defeating it by recommending it."

"In view of the facts, it surely must

CORDIAL MESSAGE BY ADMIRAL TOGO TO THE PRESIDENT

BEVERLY, Mass.—The summer White House today received a cordial message to President Taft from Admiral Togo before the admiral sailed for Japan. The telegram follows:

"Pray accept my heartfelt thanks for your kind farewell message. Allow me to express again, Mr. President, my deepest gratitude for the great honor which you have done me and my highest appreciation of the most cordial and friendly welcome which your government and people have so kindly accorded me during my stay in this country. I only regret that my present visit has been so much limited. Wishing you good health and prosperity."

ADVANCE IN PRICE OF MILK STAYED

WASHINGTON—An advance of three cents a can on milk shipped over the Delaware and Hudson railroad from points in New York state to Boston, Mass., which was to have become effective Sept. 1, was suspended today by the interstate commerce commission until Dec. 29. It is likely that other advances of a similar character by other roads will be suspended, as they are filed with the commission.

DAVID STONEMAN BEFORE COUNCIL

The executive council resumed its consideration of the objections raised against the nomination submitted by Governor Foss of David Stoneman to be judge of the Dorchester district court, at the State House today.

Attorney James H. Vahey was on the witness stand for a few minutes and was followed by Mr. Stoneman, who was on the stand the greater part of the forenoon.

PRESIDENT TAFT TO WIELD GAVEL

BEVERLY, Mass.—President Taft will motor over to Magnolia late this afternoon where he will preside at a meeting in the interest of Hampton Institute at the summer home of T. Jefferson Coolidge.

Undeterred by the showers, the President played golf all the forenoon at Myopia with Major Butt.

TELLS AMERICAN BAR MONEY POWER IS THE MENACE TO COUNTRY

Mr. Farrar's Annual Address as President of Association Devoted to Outlining the Perils of Monopoly

LAX LAWS TO BLAME

New Council Is Elected and Several Massachusetts Lawyers Admitted to Membership in Society

Members of the always conservative American Bar Association listened intently this morning while Edgar H. Farrar, president of the association, assailed the trusts and the laws under which they are organized in his address at the opening of the annual meeting in Huntington hall and when he had ended they applauded.

The big financial interests of the country, especially those of New York, were called law breakers and law evaders who plan to control the liquid finances of the nation in a gigantic money trust. The coming conference of the state governors in New Jersey was urged to devise a plan to save the country from the "interests."

Attorney-General Wickham was criticized for proposing that the government should fix prices of commodities, which was characterized as "monopolist and socialist reaching a common ground" and such a plan, Mr. Farrar said, "would shatter America's free democracy."

"A money trust controlling the liquid capital—the life current of the commerce of the nation—is doubtless the dream of the dominant financial magnates. If such a calamity does befall us, there will surely rise up another Andrew Jackson, with the power and good will of the people."

MR. BAKER URGES STOCKHOLDERS TO REJECT 'L' MERGER

Charles M. Baker, the only director of the West End Street Railway Company who has opposed acceptance of the act providing for consolidation with the Boston Elevated, has issued a circular to the stockholders advising against acceptance of the act.

Mr. Baker urges the consideration "that the information which is reasonably needed by an ordinary business man to judge of the value of the securities offered by a company is refused and withheld." As a final argument he refers to the possibility of prolonged litigation on constitutional questions.

In conclusion he advises the stockholders to sign the proxies which he accompanies his circular and to return them to the protective committee.

MOUNT BIG GUN ON BATTLESHIP

The first of four new 12-inch guns is being placed in the forward turret of the battleship Rhode Island, in drydock at the Charlestown navy yard today. The gun is about 50 feet long and weighs between 60 and 65 tons. It is swung into position by a giant traveling crane which runs on a wide gauge track around the dock. It will be some weeks before all four guns are placed on board the ship.

DIGBY READY TO HEAR SIR WILFRID LAURIER ON RECIPROCITY ISSUE

DIGBY, N. S.—With Sir Wilfrid Laurier scheduled to speak here today the campaign for reciprocity with the United States is becoming more and more the one topic. All other issues are subordinated and candidates and people are discussing little else. Preparations have been made to accommodate a large number at the meeting today.

ST. JOHN, N. B.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier urged reciprocity with the United States before a crowd of 7000 persons in Victorian rink Monday night. Thousands more were unable to gain admittance. Sir Wilfrid devoted his entire attention during the hour and a half he was speaking to reciprocity. He took up the objections raised during the conservative campaign, arguing that Canada would benefit by a remission of duties to a greater extent than would the people of the United States. He also contended that the adoption of the agreement would not jeopardize Canada's British connections because, he declared, articles covered by the proposed Washington agreement were of an altogether different character from those which Canada would import under the agreement with Great Britain.

MR. CANNON PLANS SEVERAL VISITS ON THE NORTH SHORE

Joseph G. Cannon, former speaker of the national House of Representatives, who is a guest for a few days of Congressman John W. Weeks of Newton, will be a familiar figure in Magnolia, Prides Crossing, Manchester and other points along the North Shore, having accepted invitations to visit several summer homes in that section.

Mr. Cannon is here wholly on a pleasure trip and has no political engagements. So far as known he will not appear at any of the outings and picnics which serve to start campaigns at this time of year.

Pointed Remarks About The Big Corporations by American Bar President

GREED for revenue resulted in unrestricted corporation laws. "Most large corporations are public enemies."

"The great American national disgrace is the issuance of fictitious and watered stock."

"It is of no avail to break up the Standard Oil and Tobacco companies when the same interests control."

"The House of Governors should frame general state agreements to abolish the criminal trusts."

"Congress and the states have the supreme power to define criminal trusts and force them to dissolve."

"Government cannot fix prices for merchandise, nor of the product of human labor."

"Establishment of a money trust among the national banks can only be prevented by federal power."

"A money trust controlling the liquid capital of the nation is the dream of the dominant financial magnates."

"Scope of federal business corporations, suggested by the new nationalism, would be extremely narrow."

"The remedy for corporation abuse lies in the hands of the whole people of the country."

ANNOUNCE PROGRAM FOR THE UNIVERSITY EXTENSION COURSES

The commission on university extension courses, James Hardy Ropes, A.B., D.D., Harvard University, chairman, representing Harvard University, Tufts College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston College, Boston University, Museum of Fine Arts, Wellesley College, Simmons College and courses of the Teachers School of Science and Lowell Collegiate courses, has just announced its program.

The work will begin the first week in October, 1911, and continue into May, 1912, with three vacations, the period of instruction covering 30 weeks.

The courses will be of college grade, and given by college professors and instructors of the cooperating institutions. The subjects of the courses will in part be changed in rotation from year to year.

The courses will correspond as closely as possible to courses regularly given in the curriculum of the institutions, and will be conducted in the same way, with lectures, written and laboratory work, recitations and practical exercises of various kinds, and there will be examinations and marking as in college courses.

The hours of the courses are set in the evening, in the late afternoon and on Saturday.

Instruction will be given at Boston University, Institute of Technology, Parker Memorial Institute, Boston Society of Natural History, Museum of Fine Arts and Women's Educational and Industrial Union.

The courses are open to both men and women and a student may take one or more, but students will not be allowed to attend a course unless qualified to profit by it; and accordingly, if under 20 years of age, they must have graduated from a high school or an institution of equal grade; and, if over 20, must either have so graduated or show in some way a sufficient degree of education.

PREPARING CASES AGAINST COMBINES

CHICAGO—Preparation for trial of the big cases on the federal dockets has been begun by James H. Wilkerson, United States attorney, who has just returned from his summer home in Michigan. "I am anxious to get the prosecutions under way," said Mr. Wilkerson. "The beef trust case will be the first of great importance."

Brookline Man Urges Entrance of Grand Trunk Into Boston—Lieutenant-Governor Talks on Tariff

Speaking for the first time in several weeks from the same platform the three candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination were guests this afternoon at the annual outing of the Plymouth County Republican Club at Nantasket beach.

The speeches were given after dinner at the Hotel Nantasket. Each of the candidates was well received. Speaker Walker spoke extemporaneously, limiting his remarks to a statement of his political platform on state and national issues.

Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham called attention to national issues. "One of the most important questions that can face the country," he said, "is the question of finances and matters dealing with revenue. The policy of this country endorsed on numerous occasions by the people, has been in favor of a protective tariff. There is no question now under consideration of absolute free trade. We have had various tariff bills. All have finally been drafted on the principle of compromise and log-rolling between the interests of the different states."

"The question now is whether the people want a tariff made in this old way or with the help of investigations and reports made by an expert board."

In his address Representative Norman H. White declared that the Republican party in Massachusetts had made one of

CHANGES ANNOUNCED IN LIST OF TEACHERS IN MEDFORD SCHOOLS

Among the earliest of the suburban schools to open the fall term are those in Medford, which start Sept. 6 for a 40-week session. In most of the other neighboring cities and towns the schools will reopen the following week, Sept. 11, 12 or 13.

With the opening of the school year will also come the occupancy of the two enlarged buildings, the Curtis and Tufts schools, while the enlargement of the high school building will be commenced during the school year and completed in time for next year's entering classes. The city intends expending about $400,000 in the development of the school system, the erection of new buildings and the carrying out during the next few years of a general plan already adopted to keep pace with the rapidly growing population and school enrollment.

For those pupils who have taken special courses or studied for promotion during the summer, examinations are

ANCIENTS GOING TO BERMUDA
For the fall field day of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company this year, announcement is made that the command is going to Bermuda Oct. 2, and will return by way of Atlanta, Ga., to be present at the dedication of the peace monument on Oct. 9, 10 and 11.

Monday was essentially a "biplane day." None of the monoplaneists attempted to take the air on account of the gale in the upper zone. The star performer of the afternoon's flying was Lincoln Beachey, who climbed about 3000 feet into the sky with extraordinary speed for a biplane, and then volplaned to earth in a spiral descent.

At one time it appeared as if his machine had turned turtle, so acute was the angle of the biplane in one of the spirals. This performance drew forth loud applause, and when he alighted as gracefully as a bird, the band played "Yankee Doodle" with great spirit.

Another biplaneist to brave the elements was Eugene B. Ely, who tried for altitude speed. His performance in the teeth of a 50-mile wind showed masterly control of his Curtiss machine.

An interlude in the program was the presentation to Harry N. Atwood, who holds the world's record for long dis-

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY PASSED

AUSTIN, Tex.—A presidential primary similar to that in vogue in Oregon, will be held in Texas next year if Governor Colquitt does not veto a concurrent resolution passed by both houses Monday by an overwhelming majority.

The resolution is in the form of a recommendation directed to the state Democratic executive committee that at the primary election next year candidates for President and Vice-President be included on the ballot.

CALL OFF AVIATION MEET ONE DAY AND EXTEND IT TO SEPT. 5

Unfavorable Flying Conditions This Afternoon Causes Postponement of All Scheduled Events

BOSTONIAN A PILOT

Norman H. Prince Completes Test Satisfactorily at the Squantum Aerodrome in a Burgess-Wright Machine

AVIATION FIELD, Atlantic, Mass.—On account of the weather conditions, the contest committee decided at 1 p. m. today to postpone this afternoon's program of the Harvard-Boston aviation meet to next Tuesday, thus extending the meet one day.

The program scheduled for tomorrow will be observed without change.

The management of the meet is endeavoring to arrange additional events and prizes, which, it is hoped will prove of interest to the public. What the nature of these extra items is the management has not yet announced.

There is a likelihood that the meet will be continued for several days beyond the original date, Sept. 4, for it is expected by the management that prizes will be offered by aviation enthusiasts for special events.

Norman H. Prince, son of a Boston banker, successfully qualified for a pilot's license in a Burgess-Wright biplane in the presence of Henry A. Wise Wood of the Aero Club of America early this morning.

Conditions for flying were not good, although the wind was only eight miles an hour from the south. There was thick fog and one heavy storm while the test was being made.

Mr. Prince has made several short flights at Atlantic during the past two or three months in a Burgess-Wright biplane, and has received instruction in the Wright school at Dayton, O. The test this morning was watched by Frank Coffin, a Wright aviator.

Mr. Prince is entered in the official program under No. 12 as George H. Mannor. His identity was not known, and aroused not a little curiosity among spectators and aviators alike. He has been eager to qualify as a licensed aviator for some time, and seized this opportunity, while Mr. Wise Wood was on the ground, so that he might enter the list of competitors at this meet.

It will take some time before Mr. Prince will receive his license, as there is a great deal of official routine to observe. Whether or not he will be allowed to enter the contests has not yet been decided. Mr. Glidden said this afternoon that he thought there would be no objection, but that the question would be decided later by Adams D. Clafin, manager of the meet, and the contest committee.

This is the first time that an aviator has qualified for a pilot's license on the Atlantic aviation field. The requirements for this license are as follows: The aviator must make five figure eights, go twice around the first and second pylons, then fly 1800 feet, stopping his engine before touching the ground, and landing within 170 feet of a place designated by himself before starting.

A special race to and around Blue Hills observatory, a distance of about 17 miles, for biplanes only, was announced for Thursday by the management of the meet today. The first prize is $1000 and the second $500.

It is announced that in the cross-country inter-state flights on Labor day the biplanes and monoplanes will fly in opposite directions, one class of machines going from the field to Nashua, Worcester, Providence and return, and the other to Providence, Worcester, Nashua and return. This should bring the flyers all into Worcester at about the same time.

Aero Meet for New York

NEW YORK.—It was announced Monday through a letter from Timothy L. Woodruff, president of the Aero Club of New York, who is at the Boston meet, that an aeroplane race from Boston to New York is planned as a feature of a tournament to be held at the Nassau boulevard aerodrome Sept. 23 to 30.

Mr. Woodruff expects the prizes for the Long Island tournament will aggregate $15,000.

CONSIDER PLANS FOR WISCONSIN COLLEGE BUILDING

MADISON, Wis.—Plans have been drawn up for a building to be used exclusively by the agricultural chemistry department at the University of Wisconsin and it is hoped that the foundation may be laid this fall, so that the building may be completed before the opening of the spring term in 1913.

According to present plans it will be a brick building 150 feet long and three stories high, including the basement. It will be located south of the agronomy building with which its architecture will harmonize. It will have locker accommodations for 400 students, a special students' laboratory and other experiment rooms.

STUDIES LIGHTING FOR PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—William D. Marks of New York, who has been engaged by the city council committee on lights to investigate the situation here, has commenced his work, and it is expected that his findings will be made public in October.

Mr. Marks will first investigate street lighting problems to see that the streets are properly lighted at the proper charge for the service.

His instructions include an investigation also of the private use of gas and electricity, and he is expected to report as to whether or not those commodities can be supplied cheaper than at present. Mr. Marks has been engaged by many other cities throughout the country at different times to perform similar investigations.

SEEKS LAW FOR FILLING WEST POINT VACANCIES

WASHINGTON.—It is said at the war department that the secretary of war, in all probability, will ask Congress, next winter, for legislation to insure the filling of the vacancies in cadetships at West Point. Notwithstanding the fact that three examinations have been held recently for the purpose of obtaining qualified cadets, there remained, after the last examination, in July, 32 unfilled places. The superintendent of the military academy has recommended that authority be given to fill these vacancies from the list of qualified alternates in the order of their merit.

It is claimed that legislation is not necessary to that end, as the President has authority, under existing law, to appoint cadets at the military academy to any existing vacancies in the army. Any move in that direction by the President, however, might lead to trouble for the administration, for representatives and senators, who have long had the privilege of making nominations, would not like to transfer their power of appointment. It is an ancient custom which places the nomination with members of the two houses of Congress, and it is unlikely that it will be changed by any new legislation.

The shortage in army officers has been so great that about 175 candidates from civil life are to be examined Sept. 5 for appointment as second lieutenants. There are about 200 vacancies in this grade, and with the civilians permitted to compete, the September examinations will still show a shortage. No designations will be made after Sept. 1, it is said at the war department, as it would be impracticable to arrange for the examination of candidates between that date and the date set for the examinations.

U. S. AND MEXICO JOIN IN BUREAU OF INFORMATION

WASHINGTON.—To bring about more intimate commercial relations between the United States and Mexico, a bureau of information and permanent exhibit of American and Mexican products have been established at 32 Broadway, New York city, with the approval of officials of both countries.

President de la Barra of Mexico has appointed Heriberto Barron, a prominent newspaper man and former Mexican congressman, as "commercial representative of Mexico in the United States."

Elisha Hollingsworth Talbot, also a newspaper man, who has spent a great many years in Mexico, is the American representative of the bureau. Mr. Talbot is an authority on Mexican affairs. He is the author of a book entitled, "Commercial and Industrial Mexico at the Close of 1910." For some time he has been advocating the establishment of the bureau, realizing the great value it will be to both countries commercially.

The present Mexican ambassador to this country, Senor Zamacona, originated the idea about 20 years ago, and submitted the plan to President Diaz, but it did not meet with the executive's approval.

U. S. DEFICIT FOR AUGUST IS HEAVY

WASHINGTON.—Government finances for this month will not compare favorably with August, 1910.

A deficit of $22,000,000 on ordinary accounts already is shown in comparison with a deficit of $14,000,000 last year. Customs receipts show a decrease of $4,000,000. The government's total expenditures for the same period are $2,000,000 greater.

COMMENDS PEACE CENTENARY.

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Elmer Black, chairman of the American Peace and Arbitration League, and an American delegate to the world's peace congress in Rome next month, said upon her return from England Monday that the celebration of 100 years of peace between America and England in 1914 would be an epoch-making affair on both sides of the Atlantic.

RUSH NEW BUILDINGS

CHICAGO.—Work on six buildings, to cost more than $10,000,000, began Monday in the downtown district. This rush is the result of a new ordinance limiting the height of buildings to 200 feet, which goes into effect Sept. 1. A dozen high buildings are going up, and it is said before Sept. 1 permits will be asked for many more 200 feet high.

second lieutenancies there are many college graduates. Another examination will be held next year, with a view to filling all the vacancies then remaining.

A somewhat unusual condition exists owing to the fact that the appointment of the qualified civilian candidates will have to be delayed until after the examination, beginning Sept. 1, of three or four enlisted men who have been designated to take a special examination. This is on account of the President's instructions to examine an enlisted man, Private Bloom, in whose behalf it was claimed that a prejudice against his Jewish origin had deprived him of examination for a commission. When the special examination of Bloom was ordered the President authorized two or three other enlisted men to take the examination at the same time.

The government has not yet decided why it is that an army career is not as attractive to the young men of today as it was to those of former generations. For years it has been with the greatest difficulty that the classes at West Point have been kept reasonably well filled, and the shortages have been so great as to call for occasional examinations of civilians. It is likely that two of the reasons—and there are undoubtedly others—are found in the fact that business careers are now unusually promising, and that the mental tests for admission to West Point are more strict than those required for entrance to any other institution of learning in the country, excepting the naval academy at Annapolis, where there has been for years a shortage of cadets almost as great as that at West Point.

PLAN $50,000 GARDEN IN THE BERKSHIRES

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass.—An Italian garden in the Berkshires is to be laid out at Brookside, the Great Barrington estate of William Hall Walker of New York. The plans for the garden were drawn by Vernio Vitale, of New York, and it will cost more than $50,000. There will be seven marble fountains. The work will take nearly a year to complete.

STATE ASKED TO REBUILD ROAD
LANCASTER, Pa.—The local roads committee has started another campaign for the improvement of the turnpike over the Gap hills, in eastern Lancaster county, which has annoyed motorists for many years. A petition, largely signed, was taken by a special committee to Highway Commissioner Bigelow, urging him to take up the rebuilding of that road at once.

ADVERTISING BOOKS FOR LIBRARY
ST. LOUIS.—The St. Louis Advertising Men's League has decided to assist Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian of the St. Louis public library, in placing in the library certain books, magazines, periodicals and newspapers representative of advertising, which will afford competent instruction to all persons interested in advertising.

CHICAGO LETTER CARRIERS' BAND SEES LEXINGTON

J. A. McMAHON
President of Branch 5 of the United National Association of Post-office Clerks

The Chicago letter carriers band, which is in Boston as guests of the Boston letter carriers band, took a trolley trip to Concord and Lexington today and viewed the historic places in those towns. Luncheon was served at Wright's Inn, Concord. The party proceeded from there to Bunker hill and walked from the monument through the North end, visiting the historic places in that section.

This evening the women in the party will be given a theater party at Keith's. J. A. McMahon, president of branch 5, United National Association of Post-office Clerks, heads the local committee in charge of the entertainment.

ARBITRATION PACT CALLED A PACIFIER

NEW YORK.—Among the passengers on board the Caronia, which came into port Monday, six days behind time on account of the labor situation in England, was Mrs. Elmer Black of this city, who had been one of the vice-presidents of the universal peace congress recently held in London.

"While alarmists were talking about impending war over Morocco," Mrs. Black said, "along came cables from America telling how this republic was joining hands with England in a league for universal peace. That news did incalculable good in furthering the cause of peace."

NEEDHAM SHOWS VALUATION GAIN

NEEDHAM, Mass.—The total valuation of the town is $6,978,411, a gain of $880,845 over last year. The real estate valuation is $5,421,350 and the personal estate valuation $1,557,061, an increase of $287,050 and $573,795 respectively. The tax rate is $17.4, a decrease of $1 from last year. Sixty-five new houses have been built in town during the past year.

PURCHASES FARM TO TRAIN BOYS

LEE, Mass.—A wealthy Lenox man has given $4000 for the purchase of the Ball farm in South Lee for a training farm for boy farmers. The Episcopal church diocesan missionary, the Rev. C. J. Sniffen, has been given charge of the establishment of the farm.

he that the President, in his zeal to reform the broken lines of the standpatters, forgot that all men were entitled to a square deal when he uttered this monstrous and preposterous sentence: "The bills bear internal evidence of the fact that they rested on a basis of not tariff for revenue only, but tariff for politics only."

"Really, I do not see how he could find it in his heart to utter the foregoing words, for which there is no basis of fact in the universe."

"Never in the history of the government, I venture to say, have important interests been dealt with in such a light-hearted way, with such absolute ignorance of the effect of legislation and with such willingness to sacrifice business interests to political exigencies."

"That is as reckless and unfair a statement as has been put into print since Gutenberg invented movable type, and is a personal reflection on the sense, honesty, integrity, bonafides and patriotism of every man, Democrat or Republican, who voted for these bills. As such I resent them, not for myself alone, but for all who voted as I did."

GRANT TROLLEY LINE IN BROCKTON EXPRESS RIGHTS

BROCKTON, Mass.—The board of aldermen by a vote of 4 to 2 Monday night granted a trolley express franchise to the Bay State Railway Company. There was a large attendance at the meeting, and many present were in sympathy with the opposition, for Alderman McMahon, a new member of the board, who scored the company and the railroad commission, was applauded by a number of his auditors.

Several weeks ago Aldermen Oakley and McMahon, Democrats, made it plain that they would oppose perpetual franchises and at the same time demanded of the company that transfers be granted patrons during the week of the Brockton fair, the company in the past having denied patrons this privilege, sanctioned by the state railroad commission.

Alderman McMahon in his attack on the railway and the railroad commission said: "People in Brockton have lost all faith in these autocrats, two of whom even refused to listen to our arguments when we appeared before them, and left the room. The commission is protecting the railroads against the people."

Alderman Linde told of an attempt he made to secure concessions from the company, but received no support, he said, from Alderman McMahon and Oakley, who, he added, "left me alone to the battlefield."

On a roll call Aldermen Thurber, Churchill, Linde and Littlefield voted for the franchise and Aldermen Oakley and McMahon against.

NEW HAMPSHIRE TO HONOR HEROES

NASHUA, N. H.—Voting to sustain all of the acts of the joint special committee it succeeds, the special commission composed of representatives of various military and naval units from New Hampshire in the civil war, appointed to supervise the establishment of a hall of heroes in the State House at Concord, met Monday afternoon at the home of Col. Dana W. King, The Rev. Francis H. Buffum of Winchester presided.

The following standing committees were appointed: Gen. J. N. Patterson, Capt. M. L. Morrison and Maj. S. F. Murray, finance; Capt. Lyman Jackson, Charles Moore, Charles McGregor, F. H. Buffum and Maj. J. W. Bean, contests; Maj. W. H. Trickey, F. H. Buffum, Maj. F. S. Piper and Col. Solon A. Carter, hall.

U. S. AND CANADA TO IMPROVE RIVER

WASHINGTON.—Representative Guernsey of Maine has been notified by the war department that negotiations with Canada for joint operations in the improvement of the St. Croix river had been completed satisfactorily. The district engineer at Portland, Me., has been instructed to prepare a project and proceed with the work. The last Congress authorized an appropriation of $235,000 for the improvement of the St. Croix. Canada will expend 20 per cent of the cost.

its greatest political mistakes in permitting the New Haven railroad to secure its transportation monopoly. He said that this monopoly had been obtained in defiance of the laws, and should have been opposed on moral grounds if on no other.

Mr. White advocated the entrance of the Grand Trunk into Boston; outlined the benefits that he said would accrue to the whole commonwealth through its entrance and gave at length his legislation record.

Governor Foss is scheduled to arrive home from San Francisco this afternoon and he is expected to go into conference soon after his arrival with Chairman John F. McDonald of the Democratic state committee and other prominent Democrats for the purpose of outlining plans for beginning at once the campaign against the Republicans.

Candidates Speak

Speaker Walker and Representative White addressed gatherings of Republicans at Fitchburg and Holyoke respectively Monday evening. Mr. Walker spoke in Lincoln hall of the issues of the campaign and of his own political platform. He criticized Governor Foss for employing investigators who, he said, were incompetent to perform the work assigned to them.

Representative White spoke before the Holyoke Republican Club after an informal reception at which he met many of the members. Later he spoke briefly at the Union Club, which is made up largely of English and Scotch mill operatives.

In a statement given out Monday Congressman Augustus P. Gardner assumes all the responsibility for the conditions which led to Speaker Walker being prevented from speaking at the outing at Hamilton on Saturday. He says:

"A certain amount of blame has been attributed to Mr. Lufkin, president of the Essex Club. If the program laid down by Mr. Lufkin and by others of the executive committee of the Essex Club had been followed, Speaker Walker would have delivered his speech before the audience had dispersed. Unfortunately, I had upset the program by a recommendation which now appears to have been of doubtful wisdom."

MISSION WORK TO BE THE TOPIC AT MT. GRETNA

MT. GRETNA, Pa.—Clergymen and laymen interested in church work, especially those interested in missions, are here in considerable numbers this week for the men's missionary conference which begins today and continues through Sept. 3. The conference will be similar to those held in the early part of this month at Silver Lake, N. Y., and Lake Geneva, Wis.

The Mt. Gretna conference is interdenominational, and, according to the announcement, is "especially designed for the benefit of missionary committees, pastors and other workers in the local church," and will also be of help to laymen's movement committees, city and county.

The conference will be mainly for church workers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Among the speakers are C. E. Keedy of Baltimore; Carl M. Distler of Baltimore, the Rev. Robert J. Pilgram of Carlisle, Samuel Thorne, Jr., of New York, the Rev. Lewis B. Hillis of Milburn, N. J., and B. C. Millikin of New York. Other addresses will also be made by visiting missionaries.

The manufacturer who makes something to sell to farmers wants some way to reach the kind of farmers who are sufficiently prosperous and enterprising to buy his goods. The best way to flower the weed bed is to put his advertisement in Farm and Fireside. It reaches half a million approachable and convincing farmers, who have both the means and the disposition to buy.

BEALS C. WRIGHT AND M. E. M'LOUGHLIN WIN IN SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Former Defeats T. C. Bundy in Straight Sets, While Latter Does Same to G. F. Touchard

FINALS TOMORROW

NEWPORT, R. I.—The semi-final round in the all-comers tournament of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, postponed from Monday, was played on the Casino courts here this afternoon and resulted in straight-set victories for B. C. Wright of Boston and M. E. McLoughlin of San Francisco and these two players will meet tomorrow in the finals to determine which will be the challenger of W. A. Larned.

That Wright should defeat T. C. Bundy of Los Angeles, last year's winner of the all-comers and picked to meet the English players in the Davis cup preliminaries next month, in three straight sets was a big surprise to the followers of the tournament. Wright has been playing grand tennis all through the tourney; but it was expected that Bundy would give him his hardest battle of the play.

The first set was the hardest-fought of the match, Bundy winning four of the 10 games played. In the second set he captured three, but could only get one in the third, Wright taking the match, 6-4; 6-3; 6-2.

Although McLoughlin disposed of G. F. Touchard of New York, one of the new national doubles, in straight sets, the loser put up a good battle. McLoughlin played in much better form than he showed at Longwood when Touchard defeated him and he had the match well in hand from the start. He allowed his adversary but nine games in the three sets winning, 6-2; 6-4; 6-3.

ALL-COMERS SINGLES

Semi-final
B. C. Wright, Boston, defeated T. C. Bundy, Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.
M. E. McLoughlin, San Francisco, defeated G. F. Touchard, New York, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

O'TOOLE AND CY YOUNG PITCH IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Boston and Pittsburgh will meet tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 on the Walpole-street grounds in a double-header. It will not only be the last appearance of Pittsburgh in this city this year, but Manager Clark has announced that he will use Pitcher O'Toole in one of the games and Manager Tenney announces that he will use Cy Young in one of them.

This double-header results from today's game having been called off on account of weather conditions. The double-header should be welcomed by the Boston baseball public, as it will give them a chance to see two games and also get a chance to see two of the most celebrated pitchers in baseball taking part.

BASEBALL PICKUPS

Pitcher Cheney of the Louisville team is on his way to join the Chicago Nationals.

If the Giants win the National league championship it will be due largely to their speed on the bases.

Another great game by Marquand of the Giants. He allowed St. Louis but two hits and shut them out, 2 to 0.

Pitcher Parker of New Britain shut Waterbury out without a hit or run yesterday and his team won, 1 to 0.

Tomorrow's game between Boston and Pittsburgh on the Walpole street grounds will start at 3 o'clock. It is expected that O'Toole will pitch his first major league game for the Pirates.

Bridgeport, Springfield and Hartford are having a great race in the Connecticut league. They are in that order and Hartford is only three games behind Springfield.

Adams pitched a fine game for the Pirates yesterday, allowing Boston but three hits, two of them being of the scratch order. He is again showing his 1000 form, when he won the world's championship for his team.

Worcester is now only 2½ games behind Lowell in the New England league. It is a great battle for first place and followers of the league are looking to see Manager Burkett's team beat out the present leaders.

INFANTRY SHOOTERS LEAD IN NATIONAL RIFLE TEAM MATCH

Navy Is in Second Place With Michigan Leading Other Volunteer State Militia—Marines Fourth

BAY STATE FIFTH

CAMP PERRY, O.—The shooting of the national team match began Monday morning. Forty-two teams representing the regular army and navy, marine corps and the national guard of the several states are competing for the Congressional trophy, the Hilton trophy and the Soldier of Marathon. Only two ranges were fired over Monday at the 200-yard slow fire and the 200-yard rapid fire.

When the competitors left the former the marine corps team was in the lead with a score of 512 and the army infantry was second with 503. At the rapid fire the infantry led, having made the high score at that stage and the high aggregate for the day of 1063.

The match started on time but the second pair had hardly begun to shoot when a heavy rainstorm made it impossible to keep the shot pasters on the paper targets, and Gen. R. K. Evans, the executive officer, ordered recall sounded.

The rain did not cease until a little after noon. At 1:30 o'clock the wind had veered to the clearing quarter and the shooting was resumed at the 200-yard slow fire range.

The keenest rivalry was manifested between the teams of the various classes, and at times there were more than 1000 persons in front of the large score board where the returns were chalked as each pair finished. The Ohio team, which had been looked upon as a possible winner, entered the match with guns on which the sights had all been changed at the last minute by the ordinance officer and showed to a great disadvantage.

There is no possibility whatever of their overcoming the strong lead of 38 points the infantry team has with the lack of knowledge of the zeros of their rifles and the team will do well to remain in class A.

At no stage of the game were the New York or New Jersey teams, which in years past have been strong leaders in the reckoning. The scores of the leaders are as follows:

The series will be the best four out of seven games.

The action of President Barrow in three protested games, Montreal v. Toronto, Montreal v. Newark and Toronto v. Baltimore was upheld and the protests disallowed, leaving the league standing as at present.

POST SERIES FOR EASTERN LEAGUE

BUFFALO, N. Y.—At a meeting of the directors of the Eastern league here Monday it was decided to play a post-season series to start on Sept. 26, between the pennant winners and a team composed of at least one and not more than three players from each of the losing teams. Twenty per cent of the gate receipts will go for expenses, the remainder 80 per cent to be divided among the players, 60 per cent to the winners and 40 per cent to the losers.

The series will be the best four out of seven games.

The action of President Barrow in three protested games, Montreal v. Toronto, Montreal v. Newark and Toronto v. Baltimore was upheld and the protests disallowed, leaving the league standing as at present.

INTERNATIONAL CUP ELIMINATION TRIALS TO BEGIN TOMORROW

Nine Motor Boats Will Compete for Places on Team to Race British Challengers, Sept. 4, 5 and 6

REMARKABLE SPEED

NEW YORK—Nine high speed motor boats entered for the elimination races at Huntington bay are to report tomorrow at the starting line off the picturesque Chateau des Baux Arts on Huntington bay ready to do their best in the contest over the course of 30 nautical miles.

Three of the nine will be chosen to represent America in the defense of the international motor boat trophy often known as the Harmsworth cup, now held by the owner of the Dixie, representing the Motor Boat Club of America. The races will be continued Thursday and Friday.

The race committee, of which Henry R. Sutphen is chairman, is expected to announce the names of the craft selected after the races on Friday, but it may be Saturday before the team is finally picked. The committee will take into consideration reliability, consistency of performance, and general seaworthiness.

The races for the Harmsworth trophy will be held at Huntington bay on Sept. 4, 5 and 6. The British challengers are the Duke of Westminster's Pioneer, Gordon Pratt's Tyrrel and E. Mackay Edgar's Maple Leaf III. All three boats are now in this country. From Sept. 4 to 9 the national motor boat carnival will be held at the same place, and among the 35 entries already received for this interesting series for both high speed and cruising type of boats are all three of the British boats, as well as most of the new American boats from which the defenders will be selected after the races this week.

It is believed that all speed records will be broken, both in the elimination races and in the big race for the international trophy. Rear Commodore Stuart Blackton's 32-foot boat Viva in a trial spin at Huntington a couple of days ago covered, it is said, 12 miles in 10 minutes, while the Dixie IV, owned by Commodore H. H. Melville, August Hecksher and Frederick K. Burnham, is credited with a speed of 52 miles an hour. The British boat Maple Leaf III is said to have exceeded this speed.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has placed his steam yacht, the Tarantula, at the disposal of Commodore Melville and his associates for use in patrolling the course during the international races. The revenue cutters Seneca and Manhattan have been ordered by the navy department to perform similar duty. All yachts and boats of every description will be required to keep inside of the course, and none will be allowed to anchor in or near the path used for the races.

The boats entered for the elimination trials are as follows:

Dixie IV, Commodore Melville, Vice-Commodore Frederick K. Burnham and August Hecksher; over all, 32 ft. 6 in.; two crank engines; horsepower, 540; 16 cylinders; enrolled in the Motor Boat Club of America. Viva, Rear Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, Motor Boat Club of America; over all, 32 feet; special engines; horsepower, 500; 16 cylinders; enrolled in the Motor Boat Club of America. Redless III, Thomas F. Chesworth, Motor Boat Club of America; over all, 30 ft. 6 in.; five Herreshoff engines; horsepower, 625; 40 cylinders.

Harris Hammond, Motor Boat Club of America; over all, 32 ft. 11 in.; Rice engines; horsepower, 300; 8 cylinders; enrolled in the Motor Boat Club of America. Commodore James A. Pugh, Chicago Yacht Club; over all, 31 ft. 10 in.; two Herreshoff engines; horsepower, 200; 16 cylinders; bore, 5½ in.; stroke, 6 in.

Pittaway, W. A. Taylor, Fort Washington Yacht Club; over all, 32 ft. 8 in.; two special two-cylinder engines; 8 cylinders; horsepower, 125; bore, 5¼ in.; stroke, 3 in.

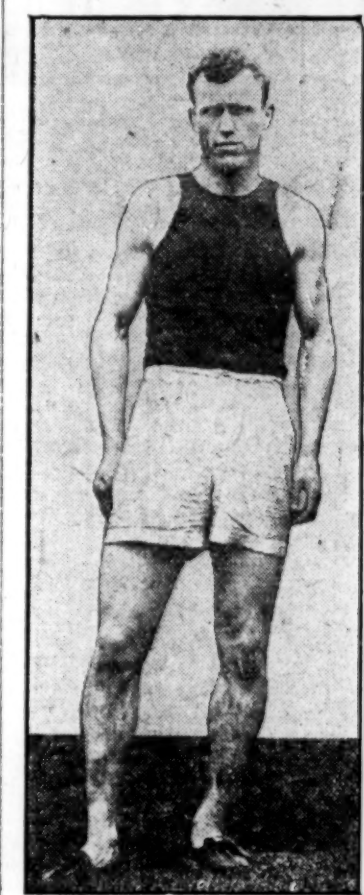

Nanciest, Hecksher and Melville, Motor Boat Club of America; over all, 26 ft.; Herreshoff engines; horsepower, 300; 16 cylinders.

Sand Burr, C. D. White, Seaside Yacht Club of Atlantic City, N. J.; over all, 18 ft. 11 in.; Emerson engine; horsepower, 60.

BRITISH SOCCER TEAM COMING

NEW YORK—England's best amateur soccer players will be seen at the Polo grounds here Sept. 18. The Corinthians, almost all of them Oxford and Cambridge men, will play an eleven selected from the best of the metropolitan soccer players. The English game has picked up mightily in interest around New York in the last two years and the contest will give local enthusiasts an opportunity to look over Great Britain's best players. Three trial games are to be played by the New York teams in order that a team may be selected to meet the Corinthians.

PRINCETON MAY GET ARMY-NAVY CONTEST AGAIN

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—It is announced here on excellent authority that there is every prospect that this year's Army-Navy football game will be played at Princeton and that the date will be Nov. 25. There would be no thought of leaving Franklin field, the grounds of the University of Pennsylvania, upon which the majority of the annual games have been played, except that both branches of the service feel that it is imperatively necessary to obtain more tickets than the Pennsylvania authorities can see their way clear to offer.

While it is not settled that Princeton will be the location of the big game, yet indications now point that way strongly. It is also thought likely that the navy will yield to the Army as to the latter's desire to have the game played on the Saturday before Thanksgiving day rather than the Saturday after. The Navy desired the latter date, but has not billed the earlier date with a game to be played at Annapolis.

MANY SURPRISES IN QUALIFYING ROUND OF WESTERN TOURNEY

Miss Myra Helmer of Midlothian Takes Qualifying Medal of Women's Golf Championship Play

FAVORITES BEATEN

CHICAGO—Miss Myra Helmer of Midlothian led a field of 76 starters in the qualifying round of the ninth annual women's Western Golf Association at the Midlothian C. C. links Monday with a card of 96. This was four strokes under the mark of her nearest medal-score rivals, Miss Caroline Painter of Midlothian, Miss Katherine Forrest of Skokie and Mrs. E. R. Whitcomb of Milwaukee, the trio being tied at 100.

Never before in the history of the tournament has there been such a variety of surprises as the first day's play developed. Mrs. Thurston Harris of Westward Ho did not appear to defend her title, and other prominent western women golfers were absent. It was considered certain that Mrs. W. F. Anderson of Hinsdale, former western title-holder, would land easily in the coveted list of 16 qualifiers. Not only did this player fail to qualify, but Mrs. H. L. Pound, recent winner of the Skokie championship and runner-up in the western last year, also failed to get into the match play. The qualifying scores follow:

Miss Myra Helmer, Midlothian, 96.	Miss C. Painter, Midlothian, 100.
Miss K. Forrest, Skokie, 100.	Mrs. E. R. Whitcomb, Milwaukee, 100.
Miss A. Sanders, Midlothian, 101.	Miss F. S. Colburn, Evanston, 102.
Miss G. Briniall, Evanston, 104.	Miss P. Manchester, Skokie, 104.
Miss Inez Clark, Glen Flora, 105.	Miss Nora Eustis, LaGrange, 105.
Miss G. Haskell, Homewood, 105.	Mrs. L. N. Brothorn, LaGrange, 106.
Mrs. G. D. Smith, Springfield, 106.	Miss M. Knapp, Skokie, 107.

PRESIDENT DWIGHT IS TO RETIRE FROM TENNIS LEADERSHIP

Head of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association States He Will Not Run Again

SERVED MANY YEARS

NEWPORT, R. I.—Dr. James Dwight of Boston, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, announced late this morning that he will not accept the presidency of the association another year. He has held that office for nearly 20 years and his announced retirement is causing much regret among those who have been associated with him in the running of the national tournaments.

Dr. Dwight was one of the leading players of this country when the game was first taken up in the late '80s. Paired with R. D. Sears in 1882-83 and '84 he won the national doubles championships and these two were the first to get permanent possession of the handsome trophies emblematic of the titles. He also won the title in 1886-87 with the same partner. He did not play in 1885.

Who is likely to succeed Dr. Dwight as head of the association is causing considerable speculation. One of those named for the position is Palmer E. Presbrey, former secretary of the association and one of the executive committee. Mr. Presbrey has had a large amount of experience in this line of sport, having been a player of standing in the '80s, when he won among other titles the intercollegiate doubles championship for Harvard in 1883 with H. A. Taylor as a partner.

CHESS MASTERS MEET TODAY IN SEVENTH ROUND

All Four American Representatives Win Their Matches in Sixth Round—Jaffe Now Second

CARLSBAD, Bohemia—The seventh round of play in the international chess masters tournament is scheduled for today with the contestants playing as follows:

Chajes vs. Loewenstach, Perlis vs. Spielmann, Chotimirski vs. Johner, Kostic vs. Alapin, Alechine vs. Salwe, Fahrni vs. Suchting, Rabinowitch vs. Schlechter, Rotlew vs. Burn, Duras vs. Tartakower, Leonardt vs. Marshall, Rubinstein vs. Piderman, Cohn vs. Niemzowitch, Jaffe vs. Teichmann.

Monday was American day, for all of the four representatives of the United States, F. J. Marshall, P. Johner and C. Jaffe of New York and O. Chajes of Chicago won their games in the sixth round. Jaffe defeated Loewenstach and moved up to second place, next to Schlechter, who made it six straight at the expense of Fahrni. Rubinstein, who had been tied with Jaffe, could only draw with Niemzowitch. The Russian champion was tied by Marshall, who scored against Duras, and by Alechine, who won from Suchting. Johner was successful against Dr. Perlis, and the game between Spielmann and Chajes yielded the Chicagoan his first victory of the tournament.

In the remaining games Leonardt defeated Vidmar, Rotlew won from Tartakower, Burn beat Rabinowitch, Chotimirski scored against Alapin, Salwe drew with Kostic and Teichmann against Cohn. After six rounds the scores of the players are as follows:

Schlechter, 6; Jaffe, 4½; Alechine, Marshall and Rubinstein, 4; Teichmann, Cohn and Rotlew, 3½; Chotimirski, Burn and Johner, 4; Suchting, Vidmar, Kostic, Loewenstach and Niemzowitch, 2½; Duras, Leonardt, Alapin, Salwe, Fahrni, Spielmann and Tartakower, 2; Chajes and Perlis, 1½; Rabinowitch, ½.

PRINTERS FROM CINCINNATI WIN

ST. LOUIS—Fifteen hundred baseball enthusiasts saw Cincinnati defeat Pittsburgh Monday in the first game of the Printers' Union league baseball series. The score was 12 to 3. Pittsburgh was the favorite because Cincinnati had never won a game in any of the typographical contests.

Edward Springmeyer, manager of the St. Louis team, had a hand on hand when the visiting printers arrived, and 300 printers from the various cities, excepting Pittsburgh, in the league, paraded the downtown streets Monday morning. The Pittsburgh crowd was delayed by a late train. Every man in line carried a red, white and blue pennant, bearing the name of the city he represented. Boston plays St. Louis today.

COOPERSTOWN WINS FINAL POLO MATCH FOR RANELAGH CUPS

Defeats Meadowbrook Magpies 17 to 2¼ in Closing Event of Point Judith Country Club Polo Season

POINTS CUP WINNERS

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I.—Cooperstown and the Meadowbrook Magpies met in the closing polo match of the season at the Point Judith Polo Club Monday afternoon, the final for the Ranelagh cups. Cooperstown easily defeated the Meadowbrook four, the score standing 17 to 2¼. The Magpies scored but one goal and all but a quarter of that on penalties.

The ground was very soft and slippery, and in the seventh period the game was concluded, the Magpies conceding the victory to Cooperstown, who thereby secured the cups. This ends the best season of polo that the pier has ever had.

At the Point Judith Country Club official announcement was made Monday of the prize winners in the series of events played at Narragansett this summer for the National Points cup. The successful players and the scores recorded are:

R. L. Agassiz	of Boston, 6½	Harrison Tweed	New York, 8½	Robert E. Stravbridge	Philadelphia, 6	and W. Russell Grace	Great Neck, 5½
Each winner of the National Points cup will be presented with an engraved silver cup as a trophy. The line-up Monday.

PARCELS POST TRIAL ON RURAL ROUTES IS URGED ON CONGRESS

WASHINGTON—An outline of the program of legislation for the postal service which Postmaster General Hitchcock will ask Congress to follow at the regular session to begin in December was indicated by Mr. Hitchcock on Monday.

In his annual report, which will be laid before Congress in December, Mr. Hitchcock will recommend the establishment of a parcels post service on rural mail routes, the crystallization into law of proposed increases in second-class mail rates, and the enactment of a law providing for a radical change in the system of compensating the railways for transporting the mails.

Mr. Hitchcock explained that it was his idea first to establish parcels post on the rural routes in order that the administrative details of the system might be worked out without disadvantage to the postal service generally.

Gradually he would extend the parcels service to urban communities, so that packages and parcels might be delivered locally by city carriers. Subsequently the service would be extended to include railway transportation.

Mr. Hitchcock indicated that the administration expected to adopt the recommendations of the Hughes second-class postage rate commission, which has been in session for several weeks in New York. The commission's report will be submitted to the Congress in December.

BOSTON BANKER PROVIDES CAMP FOR CHILDREN

BOYS WHO QUIT RANGER, AT HOME

Henry Swift of Dorchester and Henry Twinquist of Roxbury are at their homes today after working their way across the ocean on board the liner Coronia from Queenstown, where they became discontented and left the Massachusetts nautical training ship Ranger.

The two boys were employed as stokers on board the steamer all the way from Ireland to New York where they disembarked yesterday. The steamship was five days late in leaving Liverpool and was short of stokers. On June 1 the boys shipped on the Ranger from Boston and visited the Azores, London and other ports.

NEGROES DISCUSS POLITICAL RIGHTS

The National Independent Political Rights League, a negro organization, held a private session this forenoon at the Twelfth Baptist church, Shawmut avenue and Madison street. The afternoon program includes a public meeting in the old court house with the Rev. E. H. Clement as speaker, and later a trip for the league delegates and friends down the harbor on the steamer Monitor. Bishop Alexander Walters will give a public address this evening at the Twelfth Baptist church, followed by singing by soloists and a chorus of 100.

PLAYHOUSE NEWS

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

B. F. Keith's vaudeville theater this week offers Charles J. Ross and Miss Mabel Fenton in a bright comedy called "Just Like a Woman." These skilful players reveal fine qualities of acting seldom seen in vaudeville.

Miss Clara Lane and J. K. Murray have a musical and talking act during which they pleasingly sing the duet between Captain Corcoran and Little Butcher from "Pinafore."

Others are the Pelots, jugglers; Colonel Holdsworth, a fine old-time singer; the Harry Richards company in a farcical skit; Ray and Rogers, chatterers and dancers; Flanagan and Edwards in a sketch of actor life; Felix Adler, monologist; Aurora troupe of bicyclists.

"Over Night" began another week at the Shubert Monday night. The farcical story of the adventures of two separated honeymooning couples is very well acted.

"Excuse Me" with its bustling fun arising from the peculiarities of a dozen passengers in a Pullman sleeper, is in its second week at the Tremont.

The coronation pictures are still a potent attraction at Tremont Temple. Two performances are given daily, at 2:30 in the afternoon and 8:15 in the evening.

"The White Squaw" is the melodramatic attraction this week at the Grand Opera House. The play tells of the life of a white girl among Indians, by whom she was adopted in infancy. In the end she is restored to her own race and the sister from whom she was parted in the long ago. The play gives a romantic picture of primeval life, and wholly pleased the audience. Miss Clara Greenwood found favor in the title role.

Torelli's dog and pony circus is the feature of the bill this week at Norumbega park. Others who appear in the open air vaudeville theater are the four Music Comets, the Claremont brothers in aerial feats, the Golden Gate quartet, Dickens and Floyd and new moving pictures.

Boats make eight trips daily from Otis wharf for Nahant and Bass Point.

Coming Openings

Saturday night, not Labor day as first planned, will see Raymond Hitchcock reopening the Colonial theater for the new season, and the sale of seats will begin at the box office of that house tomorrow morning. "The Red Widow" was written for Mr. Hitchcock by Channing Pollock, Renold Wolf and Charles J. Gebest.

Seats will be on sale Thursday for "The Nest Egg," in which Miss Zelda Sears will open the new season at the Park Saturday night.

The box office at the Hollis Street theater will be opened Thursday morning for the sale of tickets for the new season, which will open next Monday, Labor day, with Miss Helen Ware in "The Price," by George Broadhurst.

"The Rose of the Rancho," which will open the new season at the Castle Square theater next Friday evening, will run through next week.

Seats are now on sale for "The Round-Up," which will begin an engagement Labor day at the Boston theater.

Ward and Vokes come to the Globe Monday in a new comedy. "Barriers Burned Away" is next at the Majestic.

All Boston theaters will have matinees Labor day.

"PICKWICK" IN FRANCE

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The enormously difficult task of presenting "Pickwick" in a dramatic form has been undertaken, at last, by Monsieur Charvay, and it is expected that the drama will shortly be produced at the Athenaeum theater in Paris. The task is so difficult that it has never been attempted even in England, where various versions of Dickens' novels have frequently been seen upon the stage.

Most theatergoers have seen one or other of the dramatizations of "A Tale of Two Cities," that in which Mr. Clayton delighted London audiences a decade or so ago, known as "All for Her," in which the bold step was taken of changing the venue from the French revolution of '93 to the Jacobite rising of '45, or that still better known version, "The Only Way," in which Martin Harvey has preserved the atmosphere of Paris and the sansculottes.

Then there is "David Copperfield," which years ago appeared at the Adelphi in the form of "Little Em'ly," and "Domby and Son," which was seen at the old Globe, when H. J. Montague doubled the parts of Walter Gay and Mr. Toots. These, of course, are only a few of many ventures, but from these ventures, for obvious reasons, "Pickwick" has been lacking.

The late Sir Henry Irving had, it is true, what was little more than a monologue, in which he used to appear as Mr. Jingle, and Mr. Toole was well known as Sergeant Buzfuz, in the famous trial scene, while in the late Dickens' productions at the Savoy theater, a couple of stray incidents from the great novel have been included.

Monsieur Charvay, who is a great Dickens lover, believes that it is possible to do what has hitherto been regarded as impossible, and his version constitutes a regular five-act drama. The first act will take place in Mr. Pickwick's rooms in Goswell street, where he lived in peace before the incident of the "chops and tomato sauce" had made him the defendant in the famous case of "Bardell v. Pickwick." Goswell street still exists, and, as in the days of Mr. Pickwick, it may be seen from his window still upon the right, still upon the left, still as far as eye can reach, with its opposite side still over the way.

The second act is at Rochester, Rochester famous for Mr. Jingle's soliloquy upon the bridge, the ball at the Bull inn, and the duel with Dr. Slammer at Fort Pitt. Rochester is crowded with Dickens' reminiscences. Here are the Medway marshes where Pip met the convict; here is Edwin Drood's house, and the house of the seven travelers; here is the famous cathedral and the lighthouse, and here is Minor Canon Row.

The bridge has been somewhat altered since Mr. Jingle indulged his taste for rhetoric on the castle and the surroundings, but the Bull inn remains, with its galleries and ballroom all untouched, the very picture it was when the Dover coach came rolling in from Gads hill on its way to Chatham and the sea. In this act will be reproduced the ball, on the night when Mr. Jingle, in Mr. Winkle's dress suit, insulted Dr. Slammer and involved the unsuspecting and astonished owner in the duel which should have taken place in the fields above the Medway at Fort Pitt.

In the third act Manor Farm will be seen and the old English festivities of Christmas, the Yule log and the country dances to the scraping of fiddles. Here Mr. Jingle made the acquaintance of the maiden aunt; here the fat boy gave the alarm to Mr. Wardle, and from here the elopement took place, which was frustrated at the White Hart, in the Borough, where Mr. Weller made his famous first appearance; here, too, Mr. Winkle went skating and in the neighborhood of the farm occurred the famous Eatanwill cricket match and the Eatanwill election.

The fourth act will be the famous trial scene, presided over by Justice Stareleigh, with Sergeant Buzfuz for the plaintiff, Mrs. Bardell and Sergeant Snubbin for the defendant, Mr. Pickwick; while the final fifth act will be cast in the Fleet prison, where Mr. Pickwick, inexorable as to the payment of damages on his own account, rescues Mrs. Bardell, who has been also sent there by Messrs. Dodson and Fogg, for the non-payment of her costs, and Mr. Jingle, who has found himself there as the result of his failure to meet his liabilities.

All the famous club will, of course, appear, and among the other numerous characters will be seen, facile princeps, Samuel Weller.

LONDON LITERARY NOTES

Architectural Criticism, Biography, Translation and Essay Cultivated by Present Writers

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—About this time of year, there are many holiday makers who choose as an excuse for a holiday which shall combine both pleasure and improvement a tour round the English cathedrals. The subject of cathedral architecture is a big one and needs something more than superficial observation. "The Cathedrals and Other Churches of Great Britain: One Hundred Illustrations," with an introduction by John Warrack (Schulze) will prove a pleasant companion to any one who has started to approach the subject. The preface is intended "to interest readers in the cathedrals as things of inherent beauty, and give some rough sketch of the times and the social conditions that gave them birth."

An important biography, which will shortly be issued by Longmans, is "The Life of Spencer Compton, Eighth Duke of Devonshire," by Bernard Holland, C. B., secretary to the late duke. The book will contain extracts from correspondence with Mr. Gladstone, Lord Spencer, Lord Granville, Mr. Chamberlain and numerous other statesmen, especial interest attaching to this because the Duke of Devonshire spent part of his political career in association with Liberal and part in association with Conservative statesmen. Some letters from Queen Victoria will be included by permission of the King.

A new edition of an old favorite comes in the shape of a pocket edition of the writings of Charles and Mary Lamb, edited by E. V. Lucas and published by Methuen. Mr. Lucas knows his Lamb intimately and wrote a very complete life of him a few years ago, besides editing the fine library edition of Lamb's works.

Among John Lane's new books this autumn will be "The Anarchists: Their Record and Their Creed," by E. A. Vitezelly; "Undiscovered Russia," by Stephen Graham, who has wandered far and wide in the northern forests, and "Camels in the Caucasus," by Miss Agnes Herbert.

One of the values of history is that it may happen to arouse in the thoughts of the student a sense of gratitude for the progress of recent years, as he begins to realize the many difficulties and inconveniences which beset his ancestors in ancient times—those disagreeable facts of which he is so blissfully ignorant, what time he idly extols as the "good old times." To such an one "The Post-office: An Historical Summary," which the stationery office has published, will prove very instructive. Therein he may learn how little safety or secrecy there was for letters when the mails went by coach; how costly a business it was to send a letter and sometimes also to receive one; (Sir Walter Scott in the beginning of the last century estimated his bill for letters at £150 a year); and also how great was the opposition to the system of penny postage which was adopted in 1840.

Messrs. Harrap announce Homer's "Odyssey" translated in the meter of the original by H. B. Cottrell, with 24 illustrations by Patten Wilson. English hexameter verses have not as a rule proved a success, but it is said that Mr. Cottrell's version has pleased some eminent Greek scholars.

A revival of interest in Shelley's work seems to be taking place, and we are promised this autumn by Methuen a new edition of the poems, edited and annotated by C. D. Locock, with an introduction by A. Clutton-Brock; also a book entitled "Shelley and His Friends in Italy," by Mrs. Rosetti Angeli, illustrated by Maxwell Armfield. Mr. Armfield's illustrative powers are well known to readers of The Christian Science Monitor, in whose pages many drawings by him have appeared.

Methuen's autumn announcements include "Maurice Maeterlinck," by Edward Thomas; "The Ballad of the White Horse," and a volume of essays by C. K. Chesterton; "Old Lamps for New," another set of essays by E. V. Lucas, the longest of which deals with Vermeer of Delft; and "First and Last," by Mr. Belloc, uniform with his previous collections of papers.

ple behind him, who will throttle this perversion of the financial laws," he said.

As a remedy and deterrent, Mr. Farrar said that Congress should limit the capital of national banks, prohibit consolidation and prohibit coupling of stock or directors.

The hall was crowded with an audience that included the leading lawyers of the nation and many women. Seated on the platform with Mr. Farrar were these seven former presidents of the American Bar Association: Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war; Alton B. Parker, Henry St. George Tucker, president of Washington and Lee University; Henry D. Brown, former justice of the United States supreme court; Francis Rowle, Philadelphia; Alfred Hemenway, Boston, and Charles C. Libbey, Portland, Me. Frank B. Kellogg, former United States trust prosecutor, also was on the platform and joined the others in applause when Mr. Farrar ended his address.

Mr. Hemenway, who is president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, after the meeting had been called to order by Mr. Farrar, expressed the appreciation of the Massachusetts association for the acceptance of its invitation to the American Bar Association to hold this meeting in Boston.

Mr. Farrar began his address with a tribute to Boston as the center of all that is highest and best in American citizenship and then turning to the subject before him said:

tates the mind of the American people is how to control the corporations; how to break up these great aggregations which seem to be almost as powerful as the government itself, and how to prevent their formation in the future."

He said that the agitation for the recall of the judges, as shown in the Arizona constitution, vetoed by the President, was only "one of the symptoms of the political, social and economic unrest that now pervades the whole nation."

"The radicals," he continued, "propose to destroy things generally, while the conservatives, reading the signs of the times, realize the danger of the growing excitement among the masses of the people, and are seeking an exit from the situation that will conserve political liberty and industrial prosperity."

Mr. Farrar defended the corporation as a general principle, saying it had come to stay and was necessary for our industrial development. There has always been a strong bias against corporations, he said, and now it has passed into politics, "the favorite ground of attack by the demagogue or any one desiring to enter public life being that he represents corporate interests or is a corporation lawyer."

"If there are Franksteins in corporate form stalking over the land," continued Mr. Farrar, "spreading terror and threatening destruction, the people themselves have created them by their legislatures. In 41 states there is no limit on capital stock and in 24 perpetual charters are permitted. Mergers or consolidations are only specifically prohibited in two states. In none of the states are the same persons prohibited from acting as directors of corporations of the same character engaged in the same business."

"During the last 10 years there has been competition between the states to invent and adopt the most unrestricted corporation laws. The spur has been greed for revenue; the encouragement, the success of New Jersey. Out of the latter's bosom have come the great trusts, the holding companies and the gigantic monopolies, all with their waterlogged capital stocks."

"And the corporation laws of the United States and the national banking laws contain many of the objectionable features of the state incorporation laws. How will it stand with the republic in a generation from now if the estates of all the millionaires and multi-millionaires are perpetually incorporated as is being done in New York and copied elsewhere? In the agricultural states great corporations are absorbing and combining the farms. How can that firmest of foundations of free government, a land-owning yeomanry, exist under such conditions?"

"Under the lax state and national laws great aggregations of capital have seized upon specific industries and driven everybody out of them. They stand like armed colossi astride the gateways of commerce and destroy every entrant who presumes to compete with them. They have no legal grant of monopoly, but monopoly comes to them by virtue of their size, organization and strength. They are a nest of wasps, a swarm of vermin which have over-cropt the land."

"The economic advantages, if any, that flow from these vast aggregations of capital, are drowned in the firm belief that they exercise too much political power, selfishly and unscrupulously bar the door to private enterprise, cramp the industrial freedom of individuals, destroy equality of opportunity and extinguish all hope and hence all ambition for industrial independence and autonomy."

"The great American national disgrace is found in the issuance of fictitious and watered stock possible under the laws. From it other abuses spring. Corporations own and vote stock in one another and this provision is the mother of the holding company and the trust. In Utah railroad companies have the widest powers whereby a Utah company can acquire and control the stock of all transportation corporations by land, river, lake or sea in the United States down to the smallest tramway in the smallest country village."

"When one remembers that Utah is the domicile of the Union Pacific Railway Company and that this statute was passed after that great company had acquired large blocks of stock in eight of our great railroad systems, one immediately discerns in this legislation the lion's paw—the master hand of the late president of that great company."

"Of what avail will it be to break Standard Oil Company and the American Tobacco Company into their constituent elements, if all these elements have identical stockholders, a community of interests and the legal power to establish substantial identity of directors among them?"

"The remedy is concerted action among the states. If every state will compel the big corporations to conform to new laws enacted in behalf of the people or to dissolve and liquidate, then the existing crop will be destroyed without hope of successions. That is the work for the house of governors which assembles in New Jersey next month."

"An agreement or compact among the states on the subject of their respective corporations, with the consent of Congress, would be enforceable by the supreme court of the United States. If jealousy or greed of individual states prevent such a compact the remaining states must prohibit participation of dangerous corporations in intrastate commerce. And Congress can drive out of interstate and foreign commerce all such dangerous corporations, absolutely eliminating them."

The speaker also attacked Attorney General Wickersham's proposal that the government fix prices as unconstitutional and characterized the National City Company, recently formed in New York as "an ingenious subterfuge intended to circumvent the law."

After discussing at great length the formation of the National City Company and his reasons for considering it illegal, Mr. Farrar said:

pounder of the law there has always been perpetual conflict, the one inventing plans to do indirectly what he is prohibited from doing directly, and the other extending and developing the elementary principles of justice so as to circumvent all evasions, no matter how ingeniously devised.

"It is therefore not probable in this matter that either the attorney-general of the United States or the courts will conclude that the 'ingenuity of the law-breaker is greater than the law.'"

A new membership of 1813 for the year was announced in the report of George Whitehead of Maryland, secretary. All states and territories, Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, are represented. Forty-seven state bar associations and 506 local bar associations are also represented.

In the report of Frederick Wadhams of New York, treasurer, it was said that the receipts were $27,750, disbursements $17,724, cash on hand $10,034.

"We will take up in our committee meeting during this convention some pending bills before Congress which, if passed, will prove destructive to the patent situation," said Robert S. Taylor. "I have been endeavoring to have Congress establish a single court of last resort in patent cases and this will also be considered at the convention. This court of last resort will take the place of nine circuit courts of appeal that now have patent jurisdiction and which by their disagreements have caused a great deal of confusion to patent lawyers."

Alton B. Parker, speaking of the subject of uniformity in corporation laws, said: "The committee on uniform laws has this matter under consideration; I believe it is a crying necessity. I don't think there will be a bit of difference of opinion. Corporation laws ought to be uniform laws, said: 'The number of what another would prohibit.'"

John M. Dickinson, also speaking on uniform laws said: "The number of states to agree on uniform laws of certain kinds is gradually increasing. It is out of the question, however, for all of the states to agree on all matters of law. There are many classes of law on which the states can agree, however, as at present on commercial law."

"The practice of law is an excellent field for young men to enter. The country cannot dispense with the lawyers so long as there is anything to adjudicate."

Two meetings will be held Saturday, the speakers at the morning session being Albert H. Hall of Minnesota, Wilfred Bolster of Massachusetts, Gino C. Speranza of New York, Harry Olsen of Illinois and John Koron of Massachusetts; while in the afternoon W. O. Hart of Louisiana, John H. Wigmore of Illinois and Eugene A. Gilmore of Wisconsin will be the speakers.

AVIATOR WHO BRAVED GALE AT MEET

Eugene B. Ely and Mrs. Ely at the hangars on the Squantum aviation field ethics, to the local community, the state and the world, was discussed on Monday by two organizations affiliated with the American Bar Association.

The Association of American Law Schools met last night in the Walker building under the presidency of Prof. William R. Vance of Yale University, whose annual address had for its topic "The Ultimate Function of the Teacher of Law."

The second and last session of the association will be held in Langdell hall, Harvard University, at 3 p. m. today, at which Baron Uchida, Japanese ambassador to the United States, will be the principal speaker. He will speak on "The Teaching of Jurisprudence in Japan."

Comparative Law Bureau

Various movements looking towards world unification were reported by Gov. Simeon G. Baldwin of Connecticut, in his annual address at the Walker building as director of the comparative law bureau.

"The general tendency of the times to ward the social unity of the world continues unabated," he said. "The nations are coming together."

Speaking of laws governing airships, he said:

"The dividing line between legislative jurisdiction of the states and the United States in respect of aerial navigation will no doubt in time become the object of close inquiry."

The bureau chose these officers for the ensuing year: Director, Governor Baldwin of Connecticut; secretary, W. W. Smithers; treasurer, Eugene C. Massie, Virginia; managers, Frederick W. Lehman of Missouri, Andrew A. Bruce of North Dakota, William Draper Lewis of Pennsylvania, Roscoe Pound of Massachusetts and John H. Wigmore of Illinois.

Governor Foss to Speak

The third annual meeting of the Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology will be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday and will be opened by an address by Governor Foss. Headquarters will be at the Hotel Brunswick. The program for Thursday includes speeches by Nathan William MacChesney of Illinois, president of the organization, and a committee report by Roscoe Pound of Massachusetts. From 4:30 to 6:30 there will be an informal reception at the Hotel Brunswick by the committee on arrangements to the members of the institute.

Another meeting will be held on Friday, the speakers being Edwin R. Keedy

HANGAR GOSSIP

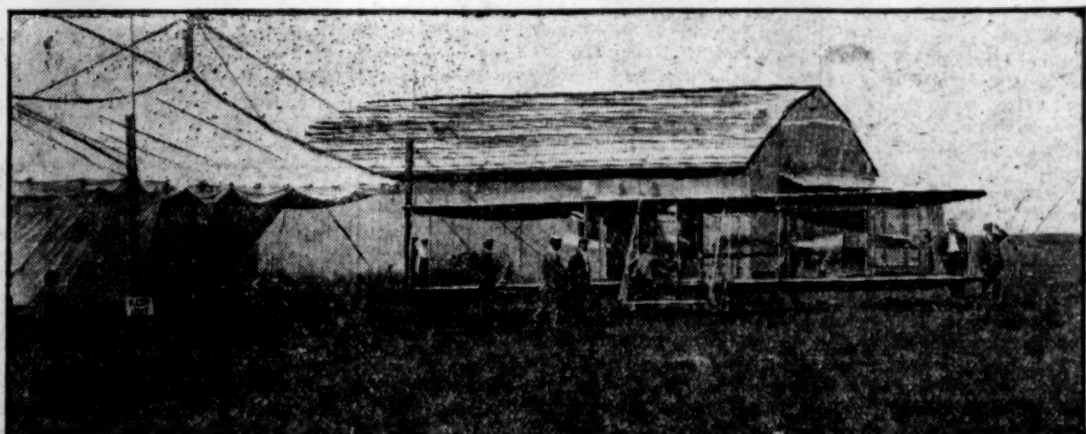

The rivals for the crown of popularity, Atwood and Graham-White, were both commented upon yesterday by the ladies for their smart dress. The Roxbury boy claims to possess a necktie from every city he stopped at during his long trip. Few know that he is also a clever pianist. Yesterday noon he entertained the guests at Squantum inn for more than an hour with a distinctly popular program.

T. C. Eichstaedt of Detroit, former chief mechanic to Ralph Johnson and Philip O. Parmelee and the present mainstay of Aviator Beatty, is always invited to accompany his employer on his first flight on a new field. Beatty has always insisted on this during the two months that he has been flying.

Harry Youngblood bears the distinction of having flown in 28 different types of aeroplanes. He has been granted French, German, Cuban and international air pilots licenses.

The pertinent question among the hangars—next to who will win the big Labor day races—is who is thinnest, Ely or Merrill. The latter has placed himself under grave suspicion by wearing loose clothing, while Ely affects tight English puttees and sweaters.

SOPWITH'S WRIGHT BIPLANE READY TO FLY

English aviator also has a Bleriot monoplane which he uses in speed events. Machine shown here is one which he flew to Quincy to set a jumping of 1000 ft.

FASHIONS AND THE HOUSEHOLD

SMART SUIT OF STRIPED SERGE

Collar and trimming of silk

STRIPED serges are exceedingly fashionable this season and they are offered in an attractive variety of colors. This suit shows a pretty one with collar and trimming of silk. The coat includes one of the big collars and it can be made either round or square at the back. The skirt is six gored. It can be finished with a belt or cut above the waist line and underfaced. The coat is made with front and side-fronts, back and side-backs. It is half fitting and includes regulation coat sleeves.

Such a suit can be made from any seasonable material with quite as good success as from serge with trimming of silk. Serge with trimming of ratiene is one of the novelties shown, and an unusual combination is dark blue with trimming of leather color. Plaid and striped materials are used as trimming on plain, and the suit would be very charming made of plain serge with color and bands on the sleeves of plaid cloth.

For the 16-year size the coat will require 3 3/4 yards of material 27, 2 1/2 yards 44 or 2 1/2 yards 52 inches wide; for the skirt will be needed 5 1/2 yards 27, 3 3/4 yards 44 or 52 inches wide, and for trimming the coat will be needed 3/4 yard of silk.

A pattern of the coat (7100), or of the skirt (7093), in sizes for misses of 14, 16 and 18 years of age, can be had at any May Manton agency or will be sent by mail. Address 132 East Twenty-third street, New York, or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

SKIRT PADS

Some dressmakers frequently have great difficulty in making skirts cut with the raised waist line hang straight in front at the line of the normal waist. At this point the skirt breaks and is very apt to show an ugly wrinkle, especially when the wearer is seated. This can be avoided by making a small oblong pad of the same material as the skirt and inserting it directly in front, says the New York Press. The pad is made four inches long and two inches wide and is placed lengthwise with the skirt. It can be tacked in place.

USE FINER THREAD

Instead of using 40 or 50 thread when sewing calicoes, etc., on the machine, use 60 or 70, and it will look better and wear better, says the Montreal Star. The two threads give sufficient strength and the finer thread holds itself in the material and becomes almost like a part of it, while the coarse thread, being raised above the surface, is subjected to more wear.

NEWEST APRONS ARE DAINTY

Named after noted people of the past

THE newest models in aprons are the daintiest affairs imaginable. And they are known by fantastic names, which are supposed to be adapted to the character of their design. Without ever having seen it any girl would know that the apron named in honor of Marie Antoinette would be of white chiffon edged with real Valenciennes and tied about the waist with a long and narrow ribbon of palest blue satin. But the same design is charming in any other colors. To make the Marie Antoinette pinafore take a yard long piece of double width chiffon, overcast its edges on to a band of narrow Valenciennes, finish the lace band with a matching edging put on with the tiniest degree of fullness; then measure a finger's length from the top edge of the chiffon, shir it four times across its entire width and finally draw it up into two finger lengths of space. This forms the bib, whose two corners are fastened to the bodice with invisible pins, while the lower or shirred edge is attached to the ribbon strings and defines the waist line. The lower section of this apron will naturally fall into wider folds the farther it gets from the belt and at the bottom will be quite wide enough for any apron designed as a decoration rather than as a protection to the front of a frock.

"Watteau" exactly describes the marquise pinafores in the palest shades of blue, rose, violet, green or yellow, says the New York Herald. A strip of material 54 by 18 inches in diameter is first evenly divided and formed into a finger length wide box plait. At either side of this plait are placed three deep half plaits, which form a diagonal ripple at both sides of the center points at the two ends of the strip of marquise, and they remain of even width until a velvet ribbon has been run through eyelet holes made in the outer folds of the side plaits, after which the upper cluster of plaits is drawn rather closely together and stitched on to the girdle.

Bordered gauze is the only material that is considered correct for the development of the Cho Cho San pinafore, which would really be a very practical affair were it made of a stout, laundable material, for the two yards of yard wide gauze are shirred lengthwise upon a narrow band surrounding the waist and arranged to cover all save the back of the skirt. This band is concealed by a three yard long sash of the gauze, which is wound twice about the waist and is as wide as the Japanese obi, but unlike it is knotted slightly at one side of the front, its bordered ends falling almost to the lower edge of the apron.

To make a Princess "Pat" apron it is positively necessary to have at least a half yard of silk of fanciful pattern, preferably figured China or one of those flexible French novelties that are soft of texture and frivolous of design. The foundation of this pinafore may be a half shield, a half oblong or a half star of about 12 inches diameter, and it must be basted upon a piece of stiff net in order to keep it perfectly flat while the deep border of plain silk or satin is being attached. This border, which is the larger portion of the apron, may be shaped in whatever manner seems best to the maker of the little accessory, and the more unusual it is the more distinctive will be the effect. A deep point, starting almost at the hem of the skirt, widening sharply upward for 10 or 12 inches and then narrowing abruptly into the merest thread at the waist line, is effective, but so are the curved or scalloped or square borders.

WEDDING INVITATIONS SAVED

They make a handy book of reference

WHAT is that book? repeated the young woman as she drew forth a bulky book from the recesses of her desk. "That is my book of wedding invitations and announcements."

"You see, so many of my friends and especially my college friends, are being married that I find it well-nigh impossible to keep track of their married names, to say nothing of their days 'at home,' and all that sort of thing, so I have hit upon this way of aiding my memory."

"As soon as an invitation or announcement comes and I have done the needful in the way of acknowledgment, I paste it in this book; then I index the invitation under the name of my friend—the unmarried name. This makes it a simple matter to find at any time just what her husband's full initials are. Perchance my acquaintance is with the bridegroom; if so, his is the name indexed, and by means of the invitation I am able to refresh my mind as to some details about his wife—her maiden name, her home town generally, and so forth.

"On my desk pad I jot down the at-home days, making a note on the calendar a few days ahead, so I will not fail to send cards at the proper time."

"It is surprising how often I have occasion to refer to this book. It is now a few years old and soon will be filled, so a second volume will have to be started. This book has saved me more than a score of awkward situations which it would have been difficult to explain had I only my memory to depend upon."—Newark News.

EASIER WAY.

It is not necessary to remove the skins from tomatoes when in hot water. Leave them in the boiling water long enough to loosen the skins, then place them on-ice. When it is time to serve, the skins come off readily, leaving the tomato much smoother and firmer than in the old way.—Delineator.

TRIED RECIPES

EGGS A LA MATELOTTE
POACH six or more eggs in white stock, chicken or veal, then drain on a sieve or a cloth. Trim them carefully and dish up on previously prepared fried bread croutons. Chop an onion and three shallots finely, fry them with about an ounce of butter in a shallow stewpan, add a little parsley, a bay leaf and thyme. Strain off the butter and add some rich brown sauce, and put it back in the stewpan. Add a few sliced mushrooms and the juice of half a lemon. Place the dish with the eggs in the oven for a few minutes, then serve over. Garnish with fillets of anchovies and stoned olives and serve.—Montreal Star.

BAKED CUSTARD AND BANANA
A tasteful and unusual touch is given cups of custard by the addition of just a little banana as they are about to come from the oven. At this moment add a few slices of thinly cut fruit and allow it to bake for five minutes. The banana will be a splendid brown. Add a little powdered sugar and serve with a dash of whipped cream. Do not add enough cream to conceal the fruit.

FRIED TOMATOES AND BACON
Cut large, firm flawless tomatoes in thick slices. Mix cracker crumbs with a seasoning of salt and pepper. Lay the tomatoes in this breading, first one side then the other, and fry in a pan with slices of fat bacon. Serve with Boston brown bread and butter.

RYE GEMS
Beat an egg light and then add half a cupful of sugar, a pint of milk and a little salt. Mix one and one half cupfuls of rye meal, one and a half cupfuls of flour and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Stir the dry ingredients into the liquid mixture and beat well. Bake in hot gem pans.

LAMB'S LIVER
Wash lamb's liver in salt water; dry with a cloth and cut into slices. Spread on a platter, moisten well with olive oil and sprinkle with parsley. At the end of half an hour, drain, dredge with salt and pepper, roll each slice in bread crumbs and broil over a hot fire. Serve with maitre d'hotel sauce.

VEAL FRICASSEE
Get a piece of the breast or shoulder of veal. Cut into small pieces, wash and put it in cold water. When the water boils, take out the meat, put into a colander and let cold water run over it. Put the meat on the stove again in fresh cold water and simmer until it is tender. Thicken the veal stew with flour and add plenty of butter, season with salt and pepper and serve.—Newark News.

RAIN PURIFIES

To clean feather pillows, put them out on clean boards during a pouring rain, says the Delineator. Let them get wet through from both sides, then when the rain is over hang them on a line. When dry they will be light and fresh as when new.

DELICIOUS MADE-OVER DISHES

Economy as well as satisfaction in them

IT TAKES thought as well as time to handle leftovers to the best advantage, but nothing proves more tempting than a savory rechauffe, says Fannie Merritt Farmer in the Woman's Home Companion. The prudent use of leftovers involves a considerable saving, and, if the housewife is careful, there is little need of waste.

Cold Roast Beef—Try slicing it very thin, and arrange the slices overlapping one another on a platter. Pour over a French dressing, to which has been added a little chopped green pepper; then surround with crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with parsley, stoned olives and curled celery. Curled celery makes a most attractive garnish to many dishes. Cut thick stalks of celery in three-inch pieces. With a sharp knife, beginning at outside of stalks, make five cuts parallel to each other, extending one third the length of pieces. Make six cuts at right angles to cuts already made. Treat other end in the same manner. Put pieces in ice-water and let stand for an hour or more, when celery will curl back and be very crisp.

Beef Casserole—Cut roast beef or cold, broiled steak in one-inch cubes. Put two cupfuls in a casserole-dish and add one cupful of brown gravy or sauce, one fourth cupful of celery, cut in small pieces, one third cupful of carrots, cut in small cubes, one half onion, thinly sliced, one half cupful of canned tomatoes, one half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, and salt and pepper to taste. Cover and cook in a slow oven one hour. Add one half cupful of canned peas and two thirds cupful of one-half-inch potato cubes, which have been parboiled in boiling salted water, to cover, five minutes. Again cover and cook 30 minutes, or until potatoes are soft. Send to table in casserole-dish.

For Savory Fish—Separate cold, cooked fish into flakes; there should be one cupful. Cut a two-inch cube of fat salt pork in very small cubes, try out and drain. To two tablespoonfuls of the fat add two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one cupful of rich milk. Bring to the boiling-point and add fish, two egg-yolks, slightly beaten, pork scraps and one and a half cupfuls of hot boiled potato cubes. Season, and serve very hot.

Baked Bean Soup—Put three cupfuls

WHAT TO EAT INSTEAD OF MEAT

Excellent dishes from fresh-grown produce

CORN custards at this time of the year make a most tempting luncheon dish, one whose acquaintance is well worth cultivating if it be a stranger in the household, says an exchange.

The same care is necessary in preparing these as for any custard, but the caintiness compensates.

Some capital housewives bake them individually, others in one mold. The first requires baking (in water) for 15 minutes, the latter for 30 minutes. Following is a favorite recipe: Score a dozen ears of fresh green corn, press the pulp from the kernels, add half a pint of milk, a fourth teaspoonful of white pepper, a level teaspoonful of salt, four beaten eggs, whites stiff and dry, and a scant half pint of flour. Have the mold or molds buttered.

When peaches prove a trifle green for cutting for dessert they can be baked into tastiness if sufficiently large and fine. Peel (or scald to remove the skins) and arrange in an earthen baking pan with a cup of sugar and half the amount of water and bake till tender. Serve them cold with the syrup or with cream. With cake this makes a most satisfactory dessert.

Cottage pudding when offered at this time of year might be prepared with peaches. It is an extremely good combination. Have the fruit (which may be slightly crushed with stones removed) in the bottom of the baking dish, and pour over it the pudding made in the usual way. The fruit must be well sugared, unless it is quite sweet, before adding the batter. This dessert is nice with a plain pudding sauce or with cream.

A good substitute for meat for a summer luncheon or dinner entree is stuffed cucumbers. Select large ones, and after peeling cook gently until tender. Cut in halves lengthwise, remove pulp and seeds, and mix what is taken out with a little minced onion, half a cup of additional cucumber, half a cup of nut meats, beaten white of one egg, salt and pepper. Fill the shells—that is, the firm white part which has been cut in half and cooked—with the mixture. Cover with crumbs and butter and bake brown.

The formula for stuffed fresh tomatoes is an appetizing one, which differs quite a little from those generally given: Do not peel the fruit, but, having selected nice firm ones, cut a slice from the blossom end of each. Scoop out the soft part and mix this with an equal amount of bread crumbs, a very little chopped onion, sprinkling of salt, pepper if you like it and an egg beaten up. Stuff the tomato skins and bake in a pan, the bottom of which is covered with hot water. Baste from time to time with melted butter in a little hot water.

When pears begin to play their part among the good things, it is well to remember that these make a piquant and easily prepared salad. Peel some ripe ones, allowing one large pear for each two diners, cut them in half and drop each as it is peeled into ice water to prevent blackening. Chop a cup of English walnuts by putting them through the meat cutter. When ready to serve wipe the pears, remove the cores, if this has not been done while peeling them, fill the little hollows with the nuts, and after placing each half on a little mound of lettuce, sprinkle with a French dressing. Serve with toasted crackers.

An unusual salad is where fresh tomato is combined with ordinary American cheese. Peel one or two nice tomatoes and slice them thick. Shave the cheese very thin. Between each two slices of tomato have a slice of cheese. The sandwich thus formed makes each portion. It is placed on lettuce and finished with French dressing.

HANDY WORKBAG

A pretty workbag is made with two fancy handkerchiefs, men's size, laid one on top of the other so as to have the eight corners separate, says the Philadelphia North American. Stitch across the corners of the uppermost handkerchief, running the line of stitching to the center. This will make four straight lines of stitching all the way across the bag and will also leave four open edges forming triangular pockets in which to put thread, scissors, needles, etc. Sew small rings at each point where the stitching meets the edge and run ribbon through these rings so the bag can be drawn up tight. The prettiest bags are made of a plain and a fancy handkerchief in contrasting colors. Have the ribbon long enough so the bag can be laid out flat on your lap when in use.

TENDER ROASTS

When roasting lamb, or any other meat except beef, in a gas-oven, it is much more tender and juicy if placed in the oven and cooked for half an hour several hours before dinner. After it has been roasting about 10 minutes to the pound or a little less (half an hour for a four-pound roast), turn off the gas and leave the roast in the oven. When ready to get dinner, turn the gas on again, and by the time the rest of the meal is prepared, the roast will be ready, according to the Delineator. It is far better than when cooked in the old way, to say nothing of the saving in gas.

ICE CREAM IDEA

Here is an attractive way of serving ice cream: Purchase tiny earthenware flower pots; then scald and thoroughly clean them. Line the inside with wax paper and pack with ice cream of any flavor desired. Smooth off the top on a level with the pot, and over this shake grated sweet chocolate. The chocolate should be put on quite plentifully, so as to give the appearance of earth, says the Woman's Home Companion. Into the middle of this stick a little sprig of some sort of green, which gives the effect of a growing plant. Place each little flower pot on a small plate and serve at once.

FLOOR CLEANER

To clean floors, buy a common black-board eraser and fasten it firmly to an old broom handle. If the eraser is dipped into a little coal oil it will take up all lint and dust and polish the floor at the same time.—Louisville Herald.

CONSIDERATION OILS THE WAY

Brings peace and happiness into a home

THE difference between households where everything seems to be and, as a matter of fact, is, at sixes and sevens, and homes breathing an atmosphere of serenity and efficiency, can be summed up often in the statement that in the one no consideration is shown, while in the other consideration enters markedly into the management.

The considerate housewife is, first of all, a woman who has the admirable faculty of being able to put herself in another's place. She knows how things should be done, and understands how to give instructions as to the doing. She does not impose tasks that are impossible of accomplishment within certain time limits. She makes allowance for ignorance, trying, of course, to remedy it. Her directions are clear and explicit. If something is not done in quite the way she would have it, she tries to be just in the matter of correction or advice, says a writer in the Newark News.

The inconsiderate housewife, on the other hand, is a person who as a rule is lamentably ignorant of the details of management. Her inconsiderateness may arise simply from thoughtlessness, or, perhaps, it may be set down to selfishness. In either case, she does not take the trouble to map out duties that come within the realm of possibility. She is quick to find fault with her husband, her children or her servants. She never stops to think how much that fault is due to her.

People are ordinarily appreciative of considerate treatment. Their return in amount of work done, to say nothing of cheerfulness in the doing of the work, is much greater under these circumstances than when there is an air of hostile criticism. This is just as true in a household as it is in an office or a factory. Wise is the woman who realizes it and acts upon the realization.

There are times, naturally, when criticisms must be made. But a criticism to carry weight must be justified. Constant nagging is the most irritating thing in the world. The house mother must remember, too, that she should be as ready to praise as to blame, even more ready. A word of commendation goes far.

No finer use can be found of the courtesies of life than in the home. The pleasant "Good morning," the inquiry as to welfare, the expression of interest in one or another; all these help mightily toward making the home what it should be. And the secret of it all is consideration.

BITS OF BEAD WORK

Fancy needlework and fashions are closely allied, as can be noted in the amount of color used, the cross-stitch designs, etc. Now the designers are bringing out centerpieces, pillows and the like with bits of bead work on them, says the New Haven Journal Courier. Tiny rows done in pink glass beads and the rest embroidered with small wooden beads give quite a finished touch to some patterns.

Censored Advertising Pays Seller and Buyer

From its inception The Christian Science Monitor has carefully censored the advertising offered for publication in its columns. This censorship has grown more strict during the three years since the Monitor's policy was first outlined. Almost daily advertising is refused because it does not comply with the Monitor's requirements.

How does this affect the seller?

In two ways: First, the advertiser whose announcements are accepted does not have to compete for the readers' attention with a mass of undesirable, untruthful advertising. His advertising is thus assured more careful and analytical attention. Second, the reader—knowing the care with which the advertising is censored—places a much greater degree of confidence in that which is published.

What is the result?

James H. Collins, a seasoned writer on advertising, may well answer this question. He says:

"Practically the whole advertising strength of a publication lies in the confidence of its readers"

Measured by Mr. Collins' standard, The Christian Science Monitor has great advertising strength. It certainly has the utmost confidence of its readers. If your advertising is of a class which will be acceptable to the Monitor, you can certainly use its columns profitably.

Now the question is:

WILL YOU?

BRITAIN SEIZES THIRD STEAMER

LONDON—A third steamer, the Bessie, loaded with munitions of war, has been taken charge of by the customs authorities at Barrow harbor.

According to an interview with the Portuguese minister in the Daily Express, the steamer Arizona and Foam Queen, which were seized by the authorities a few days ago, have probably been detained on his representation to the British government that they might be connected with the royalist movement in Portugal.

RATIONAL GOLF

By JASON ROGERS

W. L. Ritchie, the winner of the first assistants' tournament held last year, is a golfer whose career is being watched with interest. For a year or two, while he was with Braid at Walton Heath, he had been showing splendid form, and with so famous an example as the ex-champion ever before him, it is little matter for surprise that he improved rapidly. Some of his performances at Walton Heath were wonderful, second only to those of Braid. In the final stages of the assistants' tournament at Bushey hall he was in a class by himself.
His style is in many ways like that of Braid; he drives a similar ball from the tee—with a low trajectory and an immense run; and of that most important of all shots, the short approach, he is already master; he plays it (wherever a run-up is practicable) with a straight-faced iron, pitches a comparatively short distance, with a long run to follow; but so low is the trajectory of his pitch that one might almost describe the whole of the stroke as run-up—to the eye of the novice it looks like a half-topped ball.
The wonderful part of the shot is the control of the run, for this part of the stroke often considerably exceeds in length the pitch-part of the stroke; yet, when he is playing well, Ritchie time and again leaves himself dead from 30 or 40 yards away.

Not for the first time in the annals of golf has a year been known as Vardon's year—as 1911 undoubtedly will be. From the very beginning of the season the open champion showed us that he was likely to come back to his best form, and with hardly a single lapse he has maintained that form all through the year. He is unquestionably the finest living golfer just now. His exhibition matches have been almost a continuous story of successes, and his greatest victories in the "Tooting Bee" cup at Banstead Downs and the open championship at Sandwich only require the addition of a victory in the £400 tournament at Walton Heath on Oct. 5 to complete a record of success never before exceeded. Apropos of the big tournament in October, the original venue of this was mid-Surrey, but in view of the recent "mound" alterations on that course it was felt inadvisable to hold so important an event (with its big crowd of spectators) on a course which would not by then have hardened sufficiently to stand the stress of a three day's competition and the tramping of many thousands of feet.

A query submitted to the rules committee, and decided by that body last month, should be of great interest to the average golfer, for it deals with a point which is not clearly understood by many. Rule 25 absolves a player from penalty if, in taking his stand to play a ball lying in a bush, he touch or move any part of the bush. This privilege is outrageously extended by many players to mean that the player may press aside or hold back any part of the bush which interferes with the playing of the stroke. This is, of course, quite illegal; the law does not say, nor does it intend to say, that the player shall necessarily have a clear swing at his ball when lying in a bush hazard. So far, the law is clear, and the unscrupulous or ignorant player should be penalized ruthlessly for his breach of law.

But there is a case which the law does not meet, and which only the player can decide. That is, how much trampling down of the bush by the feet is permissible. The law allows the player to "take his stance," and this taking of the stance can be interpreted in so loose a manner as to allow of a good deal of illegal setting aside of obstructive bushes. The matter is purely one for player. The sportsman will seldom feel any difficulty about it, and when he does he will allow his opponent the benefit of the doubt, and will probably play the stroke all the better from knowledge that he has avoided all suspicion of sharp practice.

WHAT EDITORS ARE SAYING

THE selected editorial comments to day deal with the annexation argument put forward in Canada by opponents of the reciprocity agreement:

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN—The absurdity of the annexation cry in Canada must be known to its shouters, for every one there understands the . . .
hostility of Quebec to any possible annexation scheme.

DETROIT FREE PRESS—Mr. Taft's reciprocity will have a greater effect in destroying any inclination that still exists toward annexation among Canadians than Lord Elgin's had. It will give Canada such prosperity as she never had before, and a prosperous nation never dreams of changing its allegiance.

PROVIDENCE JOURNAL—The most careful studies of the Canadian situation portray the prospective triumph of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his party's issues.
The maritime provinces are expected to remain faithful to the Liberals, and Quebec will not slip from its moorings. In Ontario, which is always good fighting ground, and where the campaign has opened, the parties expect to split about even. More Liberals than are now sitting are expected to be returned from the western provinces.

CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD—Surely
the Dominion voters will ask for a bill of particulars. Annexation? How, by what compulsion, with or without our consent? They will be asking. And their answer must be that annexation is a question they will always be able to settle for themselves and in harmony with their own needs, feelings, interests, opinions.

UTICA PRESS—For the Canadians to refuse the opportunity of closer trade relations and more profitable business with the United States would be a good deal like New York refusing to do business with Ohio. The boundary is at best only an imaginary line and the generally entertained opinion is that both countries would be benefited by reciprocity.

VANCOUVER (B. C.) PROVINCE—
There is one outstanding feature about the present campaign that will commend itself to the self-respecting elector. The issue is clean cut and not necessarily partizan. It can be discussed in all its phases without involving personal animosity and recrimination. The advantages and defects of the proposed pact have been thoroughly discussed, and its rejection or acceptance may be safely left to an intelligent and patriotic electorate.

AMOSKEAG PLANS A REORGANIZATION

The Amoskeag Manufacturing Company proposes to modify its financial policy and will form a new $28,300,000 voluntary association, present stockholders transferring their certificates in the proportion of five shares for one.

The stock received in exchange will be two shares of 4 1/2 per cent cumulative preferred and three shares of common stock. It is understood that the exchange is not obligatory, but if a sufficient number of stockholders send in their stock the arrangement will go into effect.

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti—The Chamber of Deputies has named a commission consisting of five of its members to investigate the railroad contract awarded cessions granted under General Simon's

WASHINGTON—The United States government has expressed its willingness to receive Gen. Solon Menos as Haytian minister at Washington to succeed H.
Paulus Sannon.

VETERANS ELECT MAJ.-GEN. GREELY

SALEM, Mass.—Thirty-nine members of the nineteenth Massachusetts regiment assembled on the old campground here Monday and observed the fiftieth anniversary of the departure for war. At the reunion Maj.-Gen. Adolphus W.
Greely of Washington was elected president and Charles A. Newhall secretary and treasurer.

FRENCHMAN FIGHTS
FIRE BY INVENTION
AND TESTS SATISFY

Government Has Ordered
Number of Extinguishers
Since Their Superiority
Has Been Shown Publicly

WORLD NEXT STEP

(Special to the Monitor)
PARIS—M. Daney, a Frenchman in the little village of Tootoucau, near Bordeaux, has invented a fire extinguisher which has proved to be far more effective than any hitherto employed. It consists of a tank containing certain liquids, salts and gases. Pressing the lever mixes the contents of the tank and produces enormous pressure, which forces the liquid through a nozzle to a great height.

The inventor has spent some years in his scientific and mechanical researches, in his desire to benefit his native village, which nestling among the pine forests, had once been almost ruined by fire. His efforts were at last successful, and he first made a public test of his invention in his own village, where a barn was filled with dry branches covered with tar and petrol and ignited. The extinguisher was tried and the fire extinguished immediately.

The next step was to get it more widely known, and a public experiment was made at Bordeaux in the presence of the municipal authorities, chiefs of the fire brigade and thousands of spectators. The test was here more severe than the previous one.

A stack of packing cases and brushwood 50 feet high was erected and the pile soaked with petrol, tar, oil and other highly inflammable liquids. The flames of the enormous pile, when ignited, rose to a height of 90 feet. There was a high wind blowing at the time and the chief of the fire brigade remarked that no ordinary engine could put out such a fire. But again the new appliance extinguished it in five minutes.

Similar tests were made in other French provincial towns, and in Paris, where a final and conclusive proof of the superior efficacy of this method over others was witnessed.

Two stacks of similar proportions and construction were ignited, the usual type of engine playing upon one and the new one on the other. The new engine was not only much quicker in putting out the fire, but when an attempt was made to relight a portion of the wood on which the liquid had been playing, it proved impossible to do so. Liquefied, which had been soaked in the liquid, when thrown upon flames proved to be quite impervious to fire.

The French government is so satisfied of the value of the engine that several have been ordered for public buildings and gunpowder factories. A company has been formed to exploit it throughout the world.

HOLIDAYS SET
ASIDE FOR ROYAL
VISITING IN INDIA

(Special to the Monitor)
SIMLA—Orders have been issued that Dec. 7, the day of the state entry of the King and Queen into Delhi, and Dec. 12, the day of the Durbar, shall be observed as public holidays. Moreover, government officials will have a welcome rest from office work, for government offices are to be closed from Dec. 8 to 11.

On Dec. 12 a royal proclamation will be read in every town and village in India, and royal salutes will be fired in all places where this is possible. A portrait of the King will be exhibited on all government and public buildings, which will be illuminated in the evening.

Nor is this likely to be all, for Lord Hardinge has expressed the hope that arrangements will be made throughout the length and breadth of India for the feeding of the poor, and for sports, displays of fireworks, and school treats.

In this way the coronation of the King-Emperor should become a concrete fact to every man, woman and child in the peninsula and the first visit of a reigning British sovereign to the great dependency should be fittingly celebrated.

BERLINERS TAKE
RIGHT TO BATHE

(Special to the Monitor)
BERLIN—The new concessions made in the matter of free family bathing on the lakes near Berlin have been much appreciated.

On one Sunday over 30,000 persons frequented the fine lake at Tegel, a few miles from the city, while the number was almost double at the Wannsee lake in the Havel and at the Mueggel lake. Seldom has any permission accorded by the authorities for the people's welfare been so appreciated as this, and families from the east of the city who have never seen the ocean enjoy the delights of bathing and paddling for hours among beautiful surroundings.

State Adds to Compulsory and Free System Chances for Some Special Study
in Continuation Schools

(Special to the Monitor)
ADELAIDE, S. Aus.—This state has always kept abreast of the times, and has not been slow to effect reforms which are calculated to increase its educational status. The system in force is free and compulsory, and over £200,000 ($1,000,000) is spent annually by the government in the maintenance of schools.

From the primary, pupils may pass on to the high or secondary schools, and graduate through the school of mines and industries or the university.

Regulations have recently been formed which provide for the establishment of evening continuation schools in districts where the inhabitants are prepared to cooperate. Besides disseminating a general knowledge, these schools will specialize in the particular branch of study to which the pupil has turned his attention as a life's work.

Further legislation of an advanced character dealing with educational matters is now before Parliament. Among the principal provisions of this bill are those to raise the compulsory age from 13 to 14, and additions will also be made to the establishment of country technical schools where classes in manual training would be held.

OLD BATTLESHIP
NILE TO BE SOLD

(Special to the Monitor)
LONDON—The admiralty has decided that the old battleship Nile, which was built at Pembroke dockyard 21 years ago, at a cost of £704,487, ($3,822,435) is unfit for service and that it should be sold out of the British navy as obsolete.

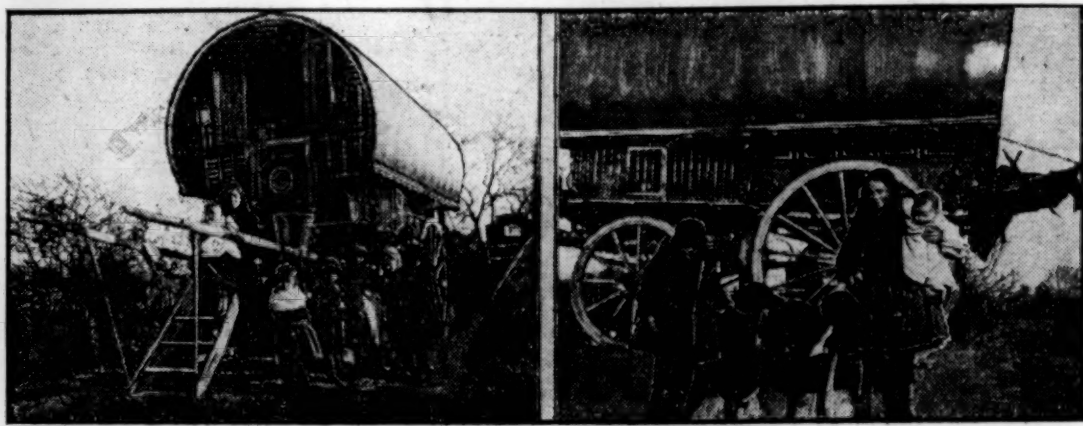

The three destroyers Ardent, Daring and Spitfire, and the old survey ships Egeria and Stork are also withdrawn from the effective list and are to be sold.

YELLOW RIVER IS SCOURGE

(Special to the Monitor)
HONGKONG—"China's Sorrow" has long been a synonym for the Yellow river. This great waterway, like many other rivers of the country, periodically overflows its banks and great havoc is wrought when extensive tracts of land become submerged and the crops are ruined.

Sums of money are on these occasions voted for the partial relief of the distress, and grants are made for the repairing of the banks, but nothing of a permanent nature has so far been attempted or even conceived whereby these recurring disasters might be prevented.

Japan now comes forward with an example which might well be copied by her more slowly moving neighbor. That

(Special to the Monitor)
LONDON—Cain was probably the first gypsy, and since his day the race has steadily increased and spread itself over the world until there is not a country, old or new, without its representative band. There is no record of the first gypsy excursion into Europe, and since they have neither alphabet nor literature and are wholly uneducated we are never likely to learn much more of their past than we know at present. Apparently they never had any religion of their own, and their only bond of brotherhood is the language they all speak alike with but the faintest differences of pronunciation. Every male gypsy is a horse dealer, a musician or a worker in metal, frequently all three combined, and he has a dozen other trades besides, for he can turn his hand to anything, and does so when occasion serves.

It has been said of gypsies that their virtues are their own, while their vices are the result of centuries of oppression. A gypsy is very much what you make him, trustworthy when trusted and polite when courteously treated. He has no ambition, no prejudices and he passes along his way, taking everything as it comes with an easy philosophy, and making the best of this life. The true gypsy is a wanderer on the face of the earth, sleeping in the open and never two consecutive nights in the same spot.

The tribe known in Yorkshire as "Caravaners" roam about all through the summer months selling baskets and other self-manufactured articles, but in winter they desert their caravans and take refuge in the towns. They have all the characteristics of the true gypsy with a little civilization in addition.

INSHORE FISHERMEN
WILL HAVE FRIENDS
AMONG LEGISLATORS

(Special to the Monitor)
LONDON—A parliamentary committee has been formed in the House of Commons for the purpose of promoting the interests of inshore fishermen, with the result that a memorandum has been forwarded to the president of the board of agriculture and fisheries, recommending among other proposals that a sub-department of the board of trade should be established to deal especially with questions relating to inshore fisheries, also that officers to be known as inshore fisheries commissioners should be appointed and attached to the new department.

It is further recommended that application should be made to the development commissioners for a grant to be applied to (a) the establishment of co-operative societies for purchasing boats and gear, for marketing and for insurance; (b) the establishment of credit banks; (c) loans for boats and auxiliary power; (d) publications giving information of practical value to fishermen; (e) grants of money to aid in the establishment of allotted holdings in tidal waters for the cultivation of shell fish.

It is also recommended that grants should be drawn from national development funds, as well as from local ratepayers, to assist in the efficient policing of the narrow waters reserved to the inshore fishermen.

Although Report Tells of Greater Immigration Than in 1909 Figures Are Less Than Ten-Year Average

(Special to the Monitor)
LONDON—The annual report of the registrar-general for Ireland was issued as a blue book.

The report shows that the loss by immigration amounted to 32,457, as compared with 28,676 in 1909, and with a yearly average for the years 1900-09 of 35,886.

That elementary education has made some progress, the report says, may be gauged from the signatures made by the contracting parties in the marriage registers or certificates. In 1910 there were 20,666, or 93.5 per cent, of the husbands, and 21,074, or 95.3 per cent, of the wives who wrote their names, and the remainder signed by marks, as against 18,525, or 86.8 per cent, of the husbands, and 19,042, or 89.3 per cent, of the wives in 1900.

(Special to the Monitor)
LONDON—A further batch of railway gangers has been despatched to Queensland for the purpose of aiding in the construction of the new railway lines in this state. As has already been reported in these columns the first batch, which arrived some little while ago, have started work and give satisfaction to the government.

The present batch of men come from all parts of the country and are eminently fit, not only for the work before them, but also, when this is finished, should they so desire, to remain on the land and take up farm holdings at preferential rates.

The rate of pay for the railway work will be at the rate of from 8s. to 16s. a day, and from the nature of the arrangements made for the housing and feeding of the men, they will be able to save a great part of this money.

The railways in Queensland are giving great scope for labor at present, as there are 476 miles in course of construction and 1908 miles authorized by Parliament. The expenditure on these new lines will reach close upon £10,000,000 ($50,000,000).

CHINESE MAY SHAME MACAO

(Special to the Monitor)
HONGKONG—In a previous article reference was made to the celebrations which took place in Canton over the suppression of gambling in the two Kwang provinces. Attempts have been repeatedly made since to undo the good work accomplished by the viceroy, but the viceroy remains firm, and the enactment, which is due entirely to his initiative, is still in force.

Not only that, but the reforming zeal has spread to such a degree that it is reported that China has made overtures to Portugal offering a substantial subsidy if that European power will assist China in her anti-gambling crusade by prohibiting fan-tan and other games of chance at Macao. Much is being heard from the poverty-stricken Macanese about it being "derogatory to the national decorum to accept subsidies from foreign governments," but it must be admitted that it is more derogatory to the national dignity of Portugal, the pioneer of European civilization in China, to allow such a state of affairs within its territory as to give China, whose oriental civilization is supposed to be of a lower standard, the opportunity of passing criticism which is more irksome because it is justified.

Certainly it does not redound to the credit of a European power that by allowing licensed gambling in a place like Macao it should hamper the Chinese in their efforts to prohibit a vice which has long been a curse of the people.

WOOL AND MUTTON
OUTPUT IN N. S. W. IS GROWING STEADILY

(Special to the Monitor)
SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aus.—The greatest industry of New South Wales has long been the production of wool and mutton. Its steady growth and continued prosperity therefore means much to its people and to the world at large. The figures for the season just closed are now available and show a total wool production of 1,033,900 bales, which considerably exceeds any other season in the history of the state. The figures for the past 10 years are as follows:

| Season    | Wool      | Sheep      |
|-----------|-----------|------------|
| 1901-1902 | 710,173   | 41,877,000 |
| 1902-1903 | 720,536   | 42,649,500 |
| 1903-1904 | 535,403   | 28,656,500 |
| 1904-1905 | 508,590   | 34,527,000 |
| 1905-1906 | 600,553   | 39,506,500 |
| 1906-1907 | 816,460   | 44,152,500 |
| 1907-1908 | 856,550   | 44,555,500 |
| 1908-1909 | 856,407   | 43,320,000 |
| 1909-1910 | 973,150   | 48,292,000 |
| 1910-1911 | 1,033,900 | 48,825,000 |

As naturally would be supposed, the statistics relative to the number of sheep corresponds in the main to those of wool production. For the same season as enumerated above the figures for sheep are as follows:

| Season    | Wool      | Sheep      |
|-----------|-----------|------------|
| 1901-1902 | 710,173   | 41,877,000 |
| 1902-1903 | 720,536   | 42,649,500 |
| 1903-1904 | 535,403   | 28,656,500 |
| 1904-1905 | 508,590   | 34,527,000 |
| 1905-1906 | 600,553   | 39,506,500 |
| 1906-1907 | 816,460   | 44,152,500 |
| 1907-1908 | 856,550   | 44,555,500 |

SWISS CELEBRATE INDEPENDENCE BY FETE AND HYMN

(Special to the Monitor)
LONDON—August 1 is the day on which the Swiss nation celebrates its independence and solidarity won by the three small states of Uri, Schwytz, and Underwalden.

Referring to this national fete the correspondent of the Times, writing from Switzerland, explains that the personal character of the festivities is due to the absence of state patronage and freedom from official organization. "There are," he writes, "no banquets, no speeches, no toasts, even to the country (although it is the unification of the country itself that is commemorated). In town and village alike nothing happens until the evening."

"But on the stroke of 8 the bells in every belfry in the country are set ringing, and at midnight fireworks are set off from the market places, town walls, and cathedral towers glow with Bengal lights, bonfires are lighted upon the hills, and the national anthem 'O Monte Independent' rises from the throats of young and old alike."

DREDGING ENDED

(Special to the Monitor)
HARWICH—At a cost of £40,000 ($200,000) the conservators have dredged the harbor to a depth of 19 feet. This work was necessitated by the demand of the admiralty for 106 moorings, which can now be provided. The admiralty have already contributed £2000 toward the cost of the work and the Harwich town council hope to receive a still larger grant.

SOUTH AFRICA NEEDS
FIRST TO HELP HER OWN, SAYS PREMIER

(Special to the Monitor)
LONDON—Before leaving for South Africa, General Botha was interviewed by one of Reuter's agents on the Kenilworth Castle.

General Botha said that he was returning to South Africa with increased optimism as to the future of the British empire. He considered, also, that in spite of what has been said in some quarters the Dominions and the mother-country, as a result of the imperial conference have entered a new era of the closest possible relationship. He expressed himself as very much impressed with the new conditions of things which cannot but have the happiest effect on the history of the British empire.

Dealing with the question of immigration he said: "My policy from the beginning has been that we in South Africa are in favor of immigration. But before we bring people from outside we must make sure that people, half English, half Dutch, who are now practically starving in South Africa shall be in a position to earn a living."

"On railway work alone we have 4700 people earning 3s. 6d. a day, a sum on which they cannot live. We want to improve on that and to get them back to the land before we talk about immigration from outside. If the people come to South Africa, we want selected agriculturists, very carefully chosen people. "No doubt a larger number of immigrants will come out, but it is a question of time and of the suitability of the immigrant. If this matter is hurried and care be not exercised, there will be hopeless failure and the bulk of the immigrants will be unable to live. English people can best help by sending out the families of men who are already working in South Africa."

RAISING WILLOWS FOR BASKETS

THE raising of willows for basket making is being resorted to by some farmers of Pennsylvania as a specialty and is proving successful. It is by no means a new departure, says Cyrus T. Fox in Orange Judd Farmer, as the industry has flourished for more than half a century in some parts of the state, but farmers in sections where the basket willow has not been heretofore grown are now planting areas of one to ten acres, with the view of making the production of willow a feature of their farming operations.

At one place in Berks county, where willows have been grown for some years, a postoffice was established to which the name of Basket was given. At Tuckerton, in the same county, the late Christopher Shearer devoted about 10 acres to willows, which, during each winter were turned into baskets and placed upon the market.

Between Reading and Philadelphia, especially in the vicinity of Pottstown, along the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, are sections of swampy land from which are obtained bales of willows every season. The land, which is not fit for cultivation, and is, therefore, otherwise unprofitable, is being made to pay at the rate of $50 to $75 a year.

Near Goldsboro, in York county, along the Susquehanna river, there are several basket willow farms. Among the more successful growers is John H. Einsig, who has just harvested the crop of 10 acres, which yielded six tons of green willow. When cleaned up the result will be about 5000 pounds, worth from 10 to 15 cents a pound.

Hundreds of tons of basket willows are cut annually in the same district, which covers a considerable section of Fairview township in York county. A New York company, having already a tract of 20 acres in willows, has just purchased a farm of 120 acres, the greater part of which will be devoted to the crop. It is expected that 500 additional acres will be planted by another syndicate.

Those engaged in growing willows for the market plant the shoots in rows about one yard apart, the shoots being set about one foot from each other in the row. Easy cultivation with the plow is thus allowed, so as to get ahead of the weeds, which frequently do great damage. After the second year the plants are strong enough to take care of themselves, and in the third year they are tall and strong enough to permit of being cut.

Wedding Gift Exchanger

The very affable man in the party of four at a restaurant table was the subject of complimentary remarks from adjoining tables.

"Gracious! Agreeable!" said a man who knew him. "Of course he is. He is a professional exchanger, and his charming personality is a part of his capital. Big weddings are his specialty. He keeps an eye on them, and when the list of presents is completed he offers to exchange duplicates. He is well and favorably known at all the stores and can negotiate the exchange to better advantage than the wedded pair."—New York Sun.

ATTEMPT MADE TO REVIVE IRISH INDUSTRIES

(Drawn specially for the Monitor)
ARMAGH PIPER WEARING IRISH KILT

THE half-yearly Oireachtas or Irish art and industry exhibition which has just been held in Dublin shows an earnest effort to bring out the result of the inventive, artistic and adaptive faculties of Irish workers and of artists living in Ireland.

Besides the work of those whose names are as well known as N. Hone and W. Orpen, there are portraits of Dermot O'Brien, Sarah Purser and J. B. Yeates, poetic scenes by G. W. Russell and many charming effects of sea, sky, wood and bog, specially from places round Dublin and the beautiful west of Ireland by artists whose names may not yet be known to fame.

A special feature of the exhibition consisted of dresses designed and made in Dublin of Irish materials and ornamented with the lace and embroidery for which this country is so famous. A novelty was silk gauze, made at White Abbey, county Down, from silk produced there. This perhaps prophesies a return to the flourishing silk trade of former times.

The effort to make country life more interesting has revived the swirl of the Irish bagpipe, which brings such a thrill to Celtic ears, while the ancient national costume of green and saffron, or brown kilt and brat is still being used for the piper.

BOARD WAGES OF SERVANTS

DURING the summer holiday season in Berlin the question as to the extent of the board wage servants have a right to demand was formerly much discussed.

Until recently there was no regulation of any kind, and a servant was often forced to keep herself at her own expense during the absence from town of her master and mistress, or lose her situation. Others, in the service of considerate persons, received some equivalent, but the amount was optional. Now the Berlin police authorities have taken up the cause of the servants—whose wages in Germany are always moderate—and have settled the question. Each hired servant must now be paid 1 1/2 marks daily, in addition to her wages, during the period of the family's absence.

By the Silver Sea

Do you remember the wild, gray sea,
The white mist falling,
A gray bird calling
Out of the shadows to you and me,
Like a siren voice from the singing sea?

Do you remember the low, sweet song,
Of a love we know
That I sang to you?
Life of my life, how the memories throng,
Of hearts attune to that low, sweet song.

Do you remember one fair, bright star,
O'er the lonely sea?
Ah, fain would I be
On the yellow strand where the white cliffs are
And the sea-bird's note and the radiant star. . . .

And we walk, we two, by the silver sea,
On the golden strand
Of its fairyland,
From the pain of parting and sorrows free
We walk adream by the silver sea.
—Cahal O'Byrne.

In These United States

Take the average Mississippi farmer. He buys canned and dried fruits—like apples and peaches. He gets up at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, fastens his Chicago suspenders to his Detroit overalls, washes his face with Cincinnati soap in a Pennsylvania wash basin, sits down to a Grand Rapids table, eats Indiana hominy, fried with St. Joseph lard on a St. Louis stove, and puts a St. Louis bridle on a Tennessee mule. He sits down at night to read a Bible that was printed in Chicago and covers himself with a New Jersey blanket.—Senator-elect Vandaman, quoted in the Chicago Post.

I earnestly advise you not to waste an hour in the society of those whose tastes and interests have nothing in common with your own.—Goethe.

New Geodetic Arc

All accurate surveys are based upon primary arcs determined by careful triangulation. An arc of this kind of great future importance has been completed by the coast and geodetic survey. It extends from central Texas to a point near San Diego, on the Pacific coast, a length of more than 1200 miles. Not only will this arc be of the utmost use in the survey of the regions adjacent to it, but it will also add valuable facts for the investigation of the true figure of the earth. There are now about 11,000 miles of primary triangulation in the United States. Probably no other branch of engineering is so romantic as this, the engineers having to traverse all kinds of country, flashing their signals from hill to hill and from mountain to mountain, and enduring every vicissitude of weather and climate.—Youths Companion.

SKATING IN THE OLD DAYS

MY boy learned to skate, but he did not know when, any more than he knew just the moment of learning to swim. He became passionately fond of skating and kept at it all day long when there was ice. . . .

His skates were of a sort that I am afraid boys would smile at nowadays. When you went to get a pair of skates 40 or 50 years ago you did not make your choice between a Barney & Berry and an Acme, which fastened on with the turn of a screw or the twist of a clamp. You found an assortment of big and little sizes of solid wood bodies with gutted blades turning up in front with a sharp point or curling over above the toe.

In this case they sometimes ended in an acorn; if this acorn was of brass, it transfigured the boy who wore that skate; he might have been otherwise all rags and patches, but the brass acorn made him splendid from head to foot.

When you bought your skates you took them to a carpenter and stood awe-strickenly about while he pierced the wood with strap holes; or else you managed to bore them through with a hot iron yourself. Then you took them to a saddler and got him to make straps for them; that is, if you were rich and your father let you have a quarter to pay for the job.

If not, you put strings through and tied your skates on. They were always coming off, or getting crosswise of your foot, or slumping down on one side of the wood; but it did not matter, if you had a fire on the ice, fed with old barrels and boards and cooper's shavings, and could sit round it with your skates on and talk and tell stories, between your flights and races afar; and come whizzing back to it from the frozen distance, and glide, with one foot lifted, almost among the embers. — W. D. Howells in "A Boy's Town."

Tides as Earth Brake

Owing to the influence of the moon causing the tides, which act as a brake, the earth spins always a little slower. Thus the day is getting longer; and, vast ages hence, the day and the year will probably be the same length, and the earth will always have the same side turned to the sun and the other in perpetual night. This is already the case with the moon as regards the earth, and so we never see the other side of the moon.—Children's Encyclopedia.

HISTORICAL CLAIM TO NAME "AMERICAN"

OTHER dwellers in this hemisphere sometimes feel aggrieved at the common custom of calling us "Americans," as if they were not also entitled to the name, but a number of historical and modern facts are gathered by the New York Tribune to show that the United States is entitled to the use of the term, to the exclusion of other countries on this side of the globe. This newspaper states that the usage "abounds in treaties, particularly in those with Great Britain—which are most significant—but also in those with other countries." "Our first treaty of peace in 1783," it asserts, "spoke of 'American' fishermen as distinguished from Canadians, and of the ratification of the treaty 'in America.'" Then the Tribune continues:

"Our treaty of commerce and navigation at the end of the war of 1812 had the same usage. The Webster-Ashburton treaty of 1842 spoke of 'the American and Canadian shores of the Detroit river,'

Many other treaties, with various countries, speak of American citizens, American territory, American vessels, American forces, the American flag, and what not. There are still other official authorities. British admiralty maps show what they designate as 'the boundary line between British and American possessions' in North America. And there is, of course, Sydney Smith's famous demand, 'Who reads an American book?' Logic and analogy might also be invoked, says the Tribune, to show that "America" and "American" are just as aptly applied to this republic as is "United States."

"It is not always enough to call this country the United States, for there are other united states. If we should insist upon United States of America, why has not Brazil as good a title to it? Or why had not Mexico? Would it not be as arrogant to call ourselves the United States of America, when there are other united states in America, as to call ourselves America when there are other countries on this continent? Again, the United States of Brazil comprises all of Brazil, politically speaking. So the United States of Colombia and of Mexico, when those countries were thus called, comprised all of Colombia and Mexico, politically speaking. In like manner, politically speaking, the United States of America comprises all of America, and may be called America for short, just as the others are called Brazil, Colombia, and Mexico."

Secret of Irving's Success

"To what do you attribute your success?" once asked an American reporter of Henry Irving.

"To my acting," said Irving simply. He didn't have to give a list!—Saturday Evening Post.

Vast Company of Readers

Is it not extraordinary to think how many books bind the ages together?

I took out Chaucer's "Romance of the Rose," an old poem I am fond of, says a writer in St. Nicholas. Instead of reading it, I began to think how many, many people had read and delighted in it since "The Morning Star of Song" had written the fragment I held in my hand; for only a small portion has survived for us through the more than 500 years that have passed since Chaucer wrote it. Yet all that time it has been read and loved.

I felt a great company about me as I turned the pages.

There were, in the first place, dim figures of the men of his own day. The antique language of the verses was their own. It was thus they spoke and thought, and the tales he told were those they laughed over or wept over in the hearty old way as the days passed over them, the same thing that happened around them and to them. He wrote for the people of his own time and greatly they enjoyed him. Among the rest was Shakespeare's "Old John of Gaunt, time-honored Lancaster," as Richard II. calls him in the play, for this duke was Chaucer's patron. Richard's first wife, the good Queen Anne, was another reader of the poet's, and he thanks her very charmingly for a kindness she did him in another of his poems.

The books Chaucer wrote were passed about in the old fashion between people who liked them, but there was no printed collected edition of them until close upon 200 years after his death. All the same, they were very well known, and especially the Canterbury Tales and the Legends continued to delight the generations following. Doubtless Shakespeare read them, and Queen Elizabeth, who hugely enjoyed a good book, with others of her ruffled and satin-clothed court. And Milton and the cavaliers and the Puritans of that time; all these and countless more had read the very words that lay before me; had smiled as I did over the account of the wonderful "Gardyn," where the "brides," as Chaucer calls the birds, sang so sweetly, and had met the "curteys mayden, Ydelnesse," who had opened the "wicket smal" for him.

Lawyers in Council

Boston and New England, in welcoming the American Bar Association and kindred organizations for their annual meetings, provide an environment exceptionally stimulating to visitors conversant with the history of law in America. Delegates from certain sections of the country will find that they have not come to a region as radical as it once was. Profound racial, economic and religious changes are making it more conservative than it used to be. Crusades for changes in methods of court procedure, for nomination, election and ejection of judges and for acceptance of like devices for greater popular control of the courts do not originate in New England. Her only prominent resident lawyer identified with the radical, insurgent movement is not a native of the region nor of its dominant races. Like other sections of the country, New England sends fewer lawyers to Congress than she used to, and more business men. Commercialism has touched her bar as it has those of regions west of the Hudson.

Nevertheless the visitor from abroad will find in Boston and New England the influence of great traditions of justice, of great jurists, and deep respect for agencies that provide education for the profession, an influence wholesome and conserving and needed to offset tendencies in other sections of the country, or at least to counterbalance their effect. Harvard University's law school has to its credit the origination and perfection of a method of studying and teaching law that has steadily won the flattery of general imitation. From Massachusetts the federal supreme court took Justice Holmes, learned in the history of law and in its philosophy. To the decisions of the Massachusetts supreme court still attach a superior weight of authority.

With the efforts of the bar association to modernize methods of judicial procedure, to accelerate court business, to diminish the cost of litigation, to tone up professional standards and more clearly to define ethical duties under altered social conditions New Englanders will sympathize.

The resumption here and there of the fight for the elimination of grade crossings directs attention to the fact that while great progress has been made along this line the time has not come when it will be wise to let matters take their course. Matters of this kind seldom take the right course unless the pressure of public opinion forces them to do it.

The Balkan Trouble

It is perfectly clear that the government at Constantinople has not come to the end of its difficulties in its recent settlement with the Malissori. Even before that settlement was complete, the southern Albanian tribes were beginning to grow restless, and now there are all the signs of disturbance in Macedonia. It may be months before these symptoms develop, just as the northern Albanian outbreak was long in developing; but develop they will unless considerably more statesmanship is shown in dealing with them than was shown in the negotiations with the Malissori of northern Albania. With Epirus and Macedonia manifesting these signs of future trouble, the government in Constantinople may well give serious consideration to the situation.

The Epirotes are Greek by descent, and their sympathies and tendencies lie in the direction of union with Greece. The Macedonians are largely Bulgars, with leanings embraced by that fact. That at this particular moment they should be becoming simultaneously disturbed, is perhaps a proof of something more than the perennial unrest of Balkan politics. There is little doubt that the methods, which lately have come to light, of the handling of the northern Albanian situation by the Young Turk party, have not been such as either to inspire the confidence of the southern Albanians, or to induce them to regard with equanimity the prospect of the Turkification of their own country. What the able correspondents of the Times in the near east have described as the "concerted silence" with which this process of Turkification has been enveloped, has lately been rent by their efforts, with the result that the eyes of Europe have, to a large extent, been opened.

The extraordinary alliance between the Ottoman government and the Jews of the near east is neither a new nor a remarkable coincidence. In many ways, the eastern Jew finds himself more at one with the Muhammadan than with the orthodox Christian church in those regions, whether represented by the Greek patriarchs of the south, or the Catholic bishops of the north. In these circumstances, he has found a way of making himself valuable to the Turk. It was in a Jewish city, Salonika, that the Young Turk party sprang into being; it was behind the impenetrable veil of the Jewish lodges that the political organization which was to destroy the Hamidian regime was perfected; and it is through the financial resources of the Jews that the development of the empire is largely being financed. The alliance might have been, and still may be, of the greatest service to the liberties of the east, but this can only be in the event of the Young Turk party eschewing its Chauvinism, and returning to those earlier ideals which first won the admiration of all reformers. Unfortunately, the two least pleasant phases of the Ottoman and Jewish character have amalgamated in the methods which have been adopted by the alliance in their political organizations. The result is that so well informed a writer as Professor Margoliouth of Oxford has recently declared, in speaking to the Eastern Question Association, that there is no longer any eastern question, for the reason that the Young Turks have put an end to it forever.

What the Governors Will Do

THE program arranged for the conference of governors of the various states, to convene on Tuesday, Sept. 12, and to continue through the week, is of a character to arrest attention. It was evidently prepared with the idea of impressing the country with the opportunities before the state executives of giving form and force to public opinion along several important lines. The governors can do no more than to bring matters of moment before the legislatures of their states and to approve or disapprove of such action as these bodies may take, but in these conferences they have the privilege at once of presenting their own views and of hearing the views of others having like responsibilities, touching upon questions with which they are likely to be called upon to deal in the course of their official duties.

A whole day is to be given to discussion of state control of public utilities, a matter of importance to practically every state in the Union. Something to be determined by the united wisdom of the governors is how this control may be enforced to bring about the best results for all concerned. The subject of employers' liability is also to receive serious attention. The inheritance tax will be discussed fully. Right of the states to fix interstate traffic rates, and the question of limitation or extension of federal powers are certain to bring out interesting expressions of opinion.

Some of the governors will represent the conservative thought of the nation; some the radical; in a few instances state executives who have drifted away from the old ideas and methods prefer to be known as progressives. These, and especially the most conspicuous of them, are certain to be given an attentive hearing, and their remarks on the general political and economic situation will not be without influence upon the next session of Congress and the next sessions of all the legislatures. It might not be going too far to say that the coming conference of governors may be the means of presenting personalities and phrases that will cling to public thought until the campaign of 1912 shall have been brought to a close. The country is looking for men and measures. Its eyes and ears are open.

A PROPOSED aeroplane flight down the Mississippi river should at least call attention to the fact that the river can be made much more useful than it is at present.

Sending Heavy Mail Matter by Freight

AN OLD statute permits the postal authorities to forward a certain kind of second-class mail matter by freight, and the postmaster-general has decided to take advantage of it. Arrangements have been made whereby magazines and periodicals, heretofore transported in the mail cars attached to passenger trains, will be carried by fast freight trains from and after Sept. 1. It is understood that this will be generally satisfactory to publishers. They are to be permitted to print on the wrapper of each copy or bundle of their publications, as a part of the address, instructions as to the date on which delivery is to be made, and postmasters have been instructed to cooperate in efforts to make this delivery on time.

As a common sense arrangement this would seem to commend itself not only to the parties immediately concerned but to the public. Getting periodicals to press a little earlier in the month, so that ample time for their transportation by fast freight may be allowed, will relieve the railway mail service of congestion that had come well nigh impairing its value seriously, while at the same time eliminating great and unnecessary expense.

The railway mail clerks have had good cause for complaint with regard to the manner in which periodicals have been dumped upon them on certain days of the month. Matters had reached a point where it was next to impossible to carry on distribution during ordinary runs. Mail that should have been dropped at certain stations was necessarily carried by those stations, to be transferred and dropped on a return trip, or by another car. Regular mail matter, letters and newspapers, has been increasing at a tremendous rate, demanding of itself nearly all the space and energy at the command of the railway service; nothing short of the doubling of the time of the clerks has served on occasion to keep the mails moving regularly.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock is entitled to praise for the many economies he has introduced in the postal service, and for this one in particular. It means not only a saving to the government in actual cash, but it means also the conservation of the labor and comfort and happiness of thousands of unknown but faithful public servants.

It is rather difficult, no doubt, to get city boys interested in the hoe, but a great deal depends upon how and when it is presented. A wide distribution of literature concerning the corn clubs of the South might go far toward promoting an interest in the soil among the boys of the North. Boys in the corn clubs do a great deal of work, but they have a good time in the doing of it.

THE comprehensive report on this year's apple crop issued by the Boston Chamber of Commerce very naturally directs attention once more to the condition of the orchards in New England. The outlook for these six states is that the crop will be 15 per cent less than last year's. In the Hudson river districts of New York the crop will be 100 per cent greater than that of 1910. In Virginia it will be 50 per cent lower. In Michigan it will be two to three times more; in the middle West generally it will be 75 per cent more. Strange to say, in Nova Scotia it will be fully three times more. The shortage in New England, to sum up, will be more than offset by the increase elsewhere.

But, in a season when the crop shows marked and general increase, the question arises: Why should there be a falling off in New England? Few things are more pleasing to the eye of the tourist over New England roads than the frequency with which it can dwell upon the homestead orchard. The early New Englanders were great orchard planters; the roadside farms bear ample testimony to this fact down to the present day. Westward emigration, the city trend, and other causes, however, combined until recently to bring about rural depopulation in many parts of New England. They also contributed largely toward changing the character of the rural population. In many instances orchards have been neglected for other crops. In many instances, also, orchards have been practically abandoned because they have ceased to yield satisfactorily.

Apples and Orchard Reclamation

Yet in New York and other eastern states, and to a considerable extent in Massachusetts, attention has been given lately to the reclamation of the old and supposedly worn-out orchards, and with the most satisfactory results. In fact, during recent years there has been much specialization along this line. Experts have been buying up old orchards in many localities, stripping the trees of decayed parts and subjecting them to skilful treatment generally, with the result that trees pronounced useless have been made fruitful. The work of reclaiming old orchards in this section has not yet been entered upon with proper vigor. The country is well planted and all the climatic conditions are favorable to apple growing.

WHEN Speaker Clark declares that no man ever declined the presidential nomination he comes very close to making a statement that might be construed into the admittance that "Barkis is willin'."

IF MAYOR FITZGERALD of Boston owes to his recent tour of European cities the insight and vigor with which he is pressing for extension of Arlington street north to the Charles River basin and south to Castle square, the Chamber of Commerce pilgrimage will have promptly begun to bear excellent fruit. By a peculiar coincidence of conditions, hardly likely to be repeated, it now seems possible at comparatively small expense, to break a roadway through from the South End to Boston's ultimate great internal pleasure resort, available not only for a park entrance but also as a highway for vehicular traffic that now has to use roundabout routes.

The section of Boston west of Tremont street is singularly lacking in broad, continuous highways running north and south. A right beginning in development of the now unused but exceedingly valuable tract of land formerly used by the New York & New Haven railroad and lying between Boylston street, Berkeley street and Columbus avenue, would add greatly to the city's wealth and assure seizure of a rare opportunity in city planning. Extension of Arlington street to the Charles River basin would make accessible to the people a municipal asset such as no other American city has, one as yet not appreciated and not fully used by Bostonians, but far more likely to be when easily approached by residents in the southern wards of the city and by dwellers in the North and West ends. Such citizens now find recreation in the Public Garden and on the Common, but then they could readily pass on to the basin reservation with its boulevards, parks and aquatic recreational facilities such as are certain to be provided in the course of time.

So many excellent ends, practical and humanitarian, pecuniary and esthetic, are sure to be furthered by this extension that it should commend itself to officials whose votes alone can make it operative, and to civic organizations that exist to mass public opinion on occasions when it needs to be made effective.

MISSOURI is making ready to "show" in earnest what are the state's resources that make for greatness.

THE reciprocity controversy in which Canada is now so intensely involved does not prevent the government of the Dominion from looking after other matters of importance to the country, the preservation of its game, for instance, and incidentally, the conservation of natural forests. Canada has already some magnificent reservations east and west. It is now about to enter on the creation of a new one on a scale commensurate with present apprehension of its growth and prosperity at home and abroad.

One of the largest game preserves in the world is to be created by the dedication of practically all the land along the eastern slope of the Canadian Rockies. This tract will be forty to fifty miles wide and will extend north and south for a distance of no less than 500 miles. All the precautions usual in Canada are to be taken with a view to the protection of the timber from fire. The reservation is to be in effect a great storage and supply district for native birds and animals.

It would not be fair to the United States to jump at the conclusion that such precautions against the annihilation of game are not being taken on this side of the line. They are. Together the two great English-speaking nations of this continent are taking steps that will go far toward correcting the errors made by both when they were younger and less thoughtful. The interests of the two in this respect are identical. In a very large sense Canadian reciprocity is already an established fact.

NEW YORK is building at a rate that will go far toward discounting the assumption that it is already overbuilt. It is evident that the metropolis is as yet far from the attainment of its full growth.

THE master bakers of the country desire that the public buy bread, instead of making use of the home oven. A first essential for the realization of their desire is that they furnish an inducement.

If it is true that cows are made happy by music, there will be little objection to the removal of pianos from apartment houses to pastures with the view of making the cows happy.

NORTHWESTERN lakes are to be freed from the carp with which they were stocked at considerable expense some years ago. Neither carp nor carping is now popular in this country.

NEVERTHELESS, a well-buttered slice of home-made bread, when one has a genuine longing for it, is not to be spoken of, save with the tenderest of emotions.

ANYBODY who thinks the back-to-the-soil movement is waning will change his opinion when he reads that they are selling potatoes by the ounce in Indiana.

IN PASSING, two things should be said to the credit of New York. It has a law forbidding smoking in the subways, and it enforces the law.
